HARVARD WINS GREAT BOAT RACE

Crimson Crew Defeats Cornellians by 10 Lengths on the Charles River—Ithacans Make Hard Fight, but Were Outclassed.

Pulling a firm, steady stroke, and unusually fresh after their efforts, despite the driving rain and rough water, the Harvard eight-oared crew crossed the finish line off the Union Boat Clubhouse on the Charles River this afternoon ten lengths in front of the Cornell oarsmen. Harvard completed the race over the mile and seven-eighths course in 10 minutes 47 seconds. Cornell's time for the distance was 11 minutes 24 seconds.

Harvard assumed the lead at the start and was never headed. Taking a quarter length lead before a dozen strokes had been pulled, the Crimson crew steadily increased the gap between them and the Cornell shell, which was persistently widened until the finish was reached. Considering the adverse weather conditions the time made was excellent.

Previous to the start the officials held a conference for the purpose of determining whether or not it was advisable to hold the race because of the disagreeable weather conditions. Though there was a stiff southeasterly breeze blowing right up the course and the rain was falling in sheets it was decided to pull off the event.

Heavy Rain and Rough Water.

When the crews climbed into the shells the rain was coming down in torrents. The water was rough; white caps literally dotting the surface, and chill winds made the hardy athletes shiver as they rowed to the starting point under the Cottage Farm Bridge.

The thousands who annually line the bridge to witness the start of the contest were thinned this afternoon, but about five hundred people braved the elements and stood on the Cottage Farm Bridge to see the shells get away. A few moments before the race was started a Harvard enthusiast on the river in the single shell was capsized and the spectators were thrilled by the sight of several lowboats putting out and dramatically rescuing the unfortunate youth.

Referee Bangs of Columbia fired the starting pistol at 2:02 o'clock.

Five seconds later the Crimson oarsmen had established a lead and had already settled down to a stroke of 31, which they maintained to the end with hardly a variation. The Ithacans put forth almost superhuman efforts to keep abreast of their rivals, but could not surely the Cambridge boys increased the lead.

Cheers from the "Side Lines."

Along Beck street on the Boston side of the river and on Magazine streets and the river bank on the Cambridge side cheers went up for the gallant work of the Harvard oarsmen. Automobiles filled with Harvard rooters, brimful of enthusiasm, cheered the lusty crew from the "side lines" as victory seemed assured. The few Cornell rooters yelled desperately for their crew to cut down the Crimson lead.

Harvard pulled a remarkably steady stroke, considering the rough going, but Cornell's watermanship was not as good as the crews Courtney turns out usually shows.

At the half-mile mark the Harvard crew had taken such a commanding lead that there was no doubt of what the outcome of the race would be. The Crimson crew never let up for a moment, however, and the Cambridge rooters shouted for them to make the victory a notable one.

When the Harvard shell passed under the Harvard Bridge, four lengths in the lead, there were deafening cheers.

Cornell got a hearty sendoff when they pulled under the bridge seven seconds later. It could be plainly seen that the Ithacans were feeling the effects of their stern chase and the rough weather. Both crews were drenched to the skin, but heading hard to the tank. The Harvard crew appeared to be in such fine condition that one could hardly say the words "finish" in any direction and those on shore had no idea which crew was leading.

Ithacans Labor in Rough Water.

The crews encountered even rougher water after passing the Harvard Bridge, but here the Crimson oarsmen breasted it much better than the Ithacans, who labored in the going and shipped considerable water.

Cornell's stroke grew short, and for the last half of the race looked as little like the Courtney article as can be imagined. Harvard, on the contrary, went along steadily, the shell full of life. There was no doubt about the outcome at the Harvard bridge. The Harvard supporters rushed from the west side of the bridge to the east side and gave the crimson crew a final send-off as they disappeared in the mist.

Crimsons Gain All the Way.

Harvard steadily increased the lead to the end, finishing with a spurt and every man upright. It seemed an age before Cornell crept up to the line, but they crossed thirty-seven seconds behind Harvard, and as they pulled their last stroke the bow oar, No. 3 and No. 7 showed that they were all in.

The Harvard crew was taken aboard the launch and with the shell towing on behind the victorious oarsmen were taken to their boat house up the river. The Cornell crew took their boat out of the water and walked with it to the Union Boat Club house. As they passed through the lines of spectators on the bank of the river they were heartily cheered for their gallant struggle.

COLIN ARRIVES SAFELY AT BELMONT

FIRST RACE—Live Wire, 13 to 5, won; Adriana, 6 to 5, place, second; Par West, 1 to 5, shows, third. Time —1:20.

SECOND RACE—Sir Morris, 12 to 10, won; Selectman, 7 to 10, place, second; Jac Madden, out, show, third.

BELMONT PARK RACE TRACK, May 30.—The great Colin, central figure in the most sensational turf episode of the year, arrived at Belmont Park shortly after 1 o'clock, and surrounded by an admiring army of stable lads and trainers, made his way to the receiving stable, where he was safely stalled. On the way to the stable Colin did not take a lame step. This precludes the possibility of his being lowed. A horse with ruptured tendons would scarcely be able to step.

Trainer James Rowe was silent and uncommunicative as usual. Rowe always recognizes his employer as the press agent of the stable and invariably refers his questioners to Mr. Keene. In response to the writer's questions, however, Rowe said: "Colin is here and is ready to race if Mr. Keen says so. He walked up from Citation safe and sound."

"What do you suppose caused his temporary disability?" he was asked.

"I cannot account for it other than he must have stepped in a hole and wrenched his leg. It is very hard to determine the real nature of injuries to horses because legs often swell from trifling mishaps and mistakes are liable to be made."

In spite of the bad weather there were close to 30,000 people at Belmont Park this afternoon.

NOTED ROBBER AND THUG GETS LIFE SENTENCE

James A. Baker, twenty-two years of age, whose home is in Columbus, Ohio, the confessed murderer and robber of post offices throughout the United States, was found guilty of tampering with the United States mail, thereby the penalties, and of murdering Edward Y. Hutchinson, the station agent at Wetmore, West Virginia, on the night of December 2, and was sentenced to the penitentiary for life at Philipp, W. Va.

Baker is well known in this city by both the Federal authorities and the police. On February 25 last Baker was brought to Detroit, by Secret Service detectives from New York, his room at the Hotel Essex searched, and thousands of dollars worth of government property found.

The youthful yeggman came to this city dressed in the height of fashion, and appeared to be a gentleman of means. He registered at the hotel under one of his many aliases and was assigned to a room. He occupied the apartments one night. He did not come to the Essex again till he was brought there by the Federal detectives.

Baker's capture revealed the fact that he was the man who had robbed postoffices in Massachusetts, New York, Connecticut and even St. Louis and Chicago.

GOULD-SAGAN BANNS SOON TO BE PUBLISHED

PARIS, May 30.—The banns for the marriage of Prince Helie de Sagan and Mme. Gould will be published within a few days. It is understood that the wedding will take place in the American church in the Avenue de l'Alma. Mme. Gould has returned to her city home in the Bois de Boulogne.

Friends of Mme. Gould and the Prince—and some who are not friends of the couple—are laughing at the statement that is being credited to her that she first felt herself drawn to the Prince by the devotion he showed for her three sons, the children of Count Boni de Castellane. He is Jay Gould's cousin, and therefore the latter's second cousin. Mme. Gould is reported to have said that the affectionate attitude of the Prince toward her children convinced her that he would make a most desirable step-father for them, and that not until after she began to realize that the Prince would also make a desirable second husband, did he become

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, Boston, May 30.—With one of the two holiday games put away, the Red Sox went after the second engagement after dinner, feeling fine for another jaunt the same way.

The Senators took the blanking they got in the morning philosophically.

The uncertain weather did not affect the oncoming of the fans, as they wanted to see the Red Sox contribute their winning streak which was interrupted yesterday.

The way the Red Sox put the Senators to rout in the earlier game gave evidence that they would be hard to shake in the afternoon, and were the big favorites with every fan who came through the gate.

It was the last appearance of Jim McGuire and his mob for many days, as they were ready to begin their western trip immediately after the scrap was over, but McGuire wanted his gents to make a glorious finish, and put his best workers on the surface.

He had Glaze, who put a dent in the Browns, get ready to capture the second, and the youngster wanted to make good.

Carrigan and Smith and Hughes getting the kinks out of their arms in a hurry before the call for battle.

It was a soaking wet field that the players got on, but the home management decided to play it, though the air was so thick the outfielders had to play by ricochet. It was a great surprise to every body that Jesse Tannehill went to the box. Falkenberg, the steeple pitcher, faced him.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

Milan popped to Wagner. Ganley hit a hot one to Tannehill, the ball glancing off his pitching hand, and McConnell got it, tossing Ganley out. Jesse tossed Delahanty out. NO RUNS.

McBride tossed out Thoney. Delahanty did the same to Lord. McConnell filled to Milan. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

McConnell threw out Clymer and Street by fast fielding. Freeman walked. McBride walked. Shipke singled, scoring Freeman. Falkenberg fanned. ONE RUN.

Cravath walked. Gessler sacrificed, Falkenberg to Freeman. Unglaub grounded out to Freeman and Cravath took third. Cravath scored on Wagner's double to centre. Donohue hit too hot for Shipke and on a throw to Freeman Wagner scored. Tannehill popped to McBride. TWO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Milan fouled to Donohue. Lord worked fast and got Ganley's bunt. Delahanty doubled to the left field fence. Clymer fanned. NO RUNS.

Thoney popped to McBride. Lord flied to Milan. McConnell beat out a hit to Delahanty. He was out stealing, Street to Delahanty. NO RUNS.

CORNELL FAVORITE IN COLLEGE FIELD GAMES

Special to the Boston American.

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, May 30.—More disagreeable weather conditions for the final heats in the intercollegiate field and track championships this afternoon could not be imagined, and consequently the attendance fell far short of what it would have been. A heavy rain fell through the night and this morning it started again, drenching the field and track until fast times were out of the question.

The general opinion was that Cornell's chances were bettered by the heavy track and the betting this morning was 3 to 2 on the Ithacans. Penn suffered most by the conditions, several of her eligibles in the distance runs being young and light and they will be unable to do their best.

WHAT TO DO IF YOUR DOG BITES YOU—How dogs get hydrophobia, how to tell if they've got it, how you can get it yourself, and what to do quick. Told in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

DOVES HAVE TO REST ALL DAY

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—Rain prevented both morning and afternoon games between the Phillies and Doves to-day.

The Hub players will leave for home to-night, and will open with the Giants on Monday.

Cartmell, Whitham and Taylor should be able to hold their own, but their points will not carry the Red and Blue to victory.

Should the Michigan distance runners hold Cornell, however, the latter will have to perform up to her best form in order to win. It is hardly likely that Shaw of Dartmouth will endeavor to break the world's 120-yard hurdle record, although he started last night that he felt equal to the task if the track remained fast.

17 MORE VOTES GAINED FOR HEARST IN RECOUNT

SIXTEEN BALLOT BOXES NOW CANVASSED WITH McCLELLAN NET LOSSES OF 85.

NEW YORK May 30.—Eight ballot boxes, selected at random from three assembly districts, were opened in the new warrants proceedings before Justice Lambert in the Supreme Court yesterday, and the new canvass reduced McClellan's alleged plurality for Mayor by seventeen votes more.

These, with the twenty-seven found to have been counted dishonestly for McClellan in the first two boxes opened on Wednesday and the forty-one on the second day, found to have been counted fraudulently, make a total gain of eighty-five for William R. Hearst in the first sixteen boxes opened.

Vindication for the Contest.

Entirely outside of the gain for Hearst or the loss to McClellan, however, is the complete vindication of the position which Hearst has maintained from the door of the canvass of the votes for Mayor in 1903, that the alleged plurality for McClellan was obtained entirely by fraud, and that a recount of the votes cast for Mayor on November 7, 1903, would disclose gross frauds in practically every election district.

Out of the sixteen boxes opened, all but three have disclosed positive evidence of dishonest practices in connection with election.

In only two of the sixteen was the count of the inspectors on election night found to be correct, and in one Hearst lost three votes through irregular marks on the ballots.

This is the only box in the sixteen which have been opened in which there was a loss for Hearst.

The district was the 41st of the Fourth Assembly District, and was the last box to be opened by Deputy Attorney General Charles A. Dobson yesterday afternoon. On the count of the votes in the box McClellan lost five and Hearst thirteen. When the protested ballots filed with the county clerk were counted, four of those for McClellan were allowed to Justice Lambert and nine of those marked for Hearst were allowed. This left McClellan with a loss of one and Hearst with a loss of four, or a net loss of three for Hearst.

Voters Made a Mistake.

Two of the three ballots had been marked with a blue pencil while on the third the voter had made his cross outside the voting space in front of Senator Page in the nominating column. In the second election district of the Eighth Assembly district McClellan and Hearst had one vote each on the recount, leaving the vote in that district unchanged.

Practically all the boxes opened yesterday were from the election districts in the lower East Side, where Hearst polled many more votes than McClellan. The fact that Hearst showed gains in a majority of these districts, and that his losses through detective ballots were in nearly all cases less than those of McClellan was another shock to McClellan's counsel.

Looked in Vain for Hearst Losses.

They have been insisting that as soon as the boxes were opened in the districts in which Hearst obtained a majority by the votes he would show even greater losses than McClellan. They looked in vain for these losses yesterday, however, and were unable to hide their disappointment as the steady gain continued while one box after the other was opened and canvassed.

Counsel for McClellan have abandoned practically all effort to delay the progress of the recount. Both of McClellan's lawyers have now waived the tedious technical objections they had been in the habit of making whenever a new box was ready to be opened in evidence and reopened. Justice Lambert insisted that the recount proceed as rapidly as possible.

NEW NAUTICAL GARDENS OPEN

The new Nautical Gardens at Revere Beach were formally opened for the season last evening when some two thousand guests of the Ridgway company were shown over the spacious building and used the big ballroom for the first time. The building is divided into two parts, the ballroom, which is said to be the largest in New England, and the "pike," which is filled with ingenious contrivances to provide fun and laughter.

At each corner of the building on the outside rises a tower 140 feet high, and both, covered with electric lights at night, make a spectacle that can be seen for ten miles. Inside, much attention has been paid to the decorations, and the entrance of the ballroom was one of last night's gems to be the prettiest they have ever seen. The building has been placed in charge of Edgar L. Reasey.

STONE TALKS ON IN SENATE FILIBUSTER

MISSOURI SENATOR KEEPS STEADILY AT IT WHILE LA FOLLETTE RESTS.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—At 1:23 o'clock the Senate took a recess for thirty minutes. Senator Stone was still speaking in the filibuster against the emergency currency bill.

The plan of the Senate leaders now is to prevent LaFollette again taking the floor. Should he attempt to do so, Rule 19 will be sprung on him. This declares that no Senator may speak more than twice on the same subject on the same Legislative day. During yesterday LaFollette at one time yielded the floor for the introduction of some bills and reports. Therefore, according to the leaders he has already spoken twice on the same subject on the same Legislative day.

Shortly after Stone began his speech Aldrich interrupted to inquire whether or not it was true that Stone had come back to Washington "in the interests of a certain presidential candidate?" referring to Bryan. He called attention to the newspaper reports that it was at Bryan's request that Stone had come to the assistance of LaFollette.

The Missouri Senator denied that he had been commissioned by Bryan.

At the conclusion of Stone's speech Gore, the blind senator from Oklahoma, who was at his desk when LaFollette finished, will take up the debate. It was reported also that Senator Jeff Davis, the Arkansas firebrand, was on his way from the West, to arrive today, and that he would join in the filibuster.

When LaFollette left the Senate floor this morning, after talking thirteen hours, he appeared perfectly composed, and in as good physical condition as when he began his record-breaking speech. His voice showed no signs of the extraordinary strain which it had undergone. He said that the only real discomfort he felt was in his feet. These he said were somewhat swollen from standing so long.

Leaves for Brief Sleep.

His back and legs also were a trifle sore from leaning against his chair. He went immediately to the Senate barbershop, where he was shaved, then refusing offers of a carriage he took a street car for his home.

"I am going home to take a bath and get three hours' sleep, then I shall return to succeed Senator Gore," he said to a United Press representative as he stepped from the car.

The longest previous one-man filibuster in the Senate was that conducted by Senator Allen of Nebraska in 1895, who spoke for fourteen consecutive hours and succeeded in defeating the bill proposing a repeal the silver purchase law.

The next longest consecutive speech was that of Senator Carter of Montana, who on the night of March 3 an the morning of March 4, 1891, used his votes to kill the rivers and harbors bill.

Carter was compelled last night to take to his own medicine, and he did it with a will. He was not the only talking contestant, however, as he was worn and weary Senate that sat scowling through the night as Senator LaFollette proceeded cheerfully and untiringly in his effort to kill the currency bill in its present form, or prolong the session of Congress indefinitely.

Food Brought to Speaker.

Occasionally during the afternoon and night the Wisconsin senator sipped from a glass full of milk and egg or swallowed a mouthful of water. Twice during the night he ate a vegetarian sandwich while roll calls were being had to establish the presence of a quorum. At 4 o'clock this morning his private secretary entered with another sandwich, but owing to the gag rule adopted at 1 o'clock, preventing further quorum calls, LaFollette ignored the food and continued uninterrupted.

Throughout the night and early morning hours the galleries were well occupied. Miss Lola LaFollette, daughter of the senator, watched the proceedings from the members' gallery all through the night, and there were five other ladies who remained until the conclusion of the senator's speech.

On the floor sleepy senators stretched their aching limbs and settled back in their chairs, vainly seeking comfort. Along the sides of the chamber the couches were occupied all through the night by exhausted senators, stretched out at length, in attempts to catch a few moments' sleep.

Senators Filch Cushions.

Senator Warren, at 2:30 o'clock, filched a cushion from the coat room, and his example was quickly followed by Foraker, Gallinger, Hopkins and others.

Dawn brought a cooler atmosphere to the heated chamber. How La Follette managed to endure the exercising heat and stifling stuffiness of the Senate chamber while under the strain of such an ordeal is a mystery. Other Senators appeared absolutely exhausted after no exertion other than listening to the excoriating remarks of the Wisconsin Senator.

The rule adopted at 1 o'clock denying to LaFollette the right of demanding repeated roll calls forced him to speak without rest from that time on. In all he had succeeded in having thirty-six roll calls, when a party rule not previously invoked in a generation was sprung by Senator Aldrich providing that a quorum could not again be questioned until intervening business had elapsed.

Read From Book Two Hours.

All through the eighteen hours La Follette kept his equanimity and good humor, while the other Republican Senators were getting madder every minute. He frequently read from books and government reports. At one time, having read one book for nearly two hours, he digressed to confess humorously that he had not yet been able to ascertain just what the author was driving at, but declared, nevertheless, that it was extremely interesting reading.

Later he paused, regarded the almost vacant Senate Chamber with its quota of tired and scowling membership of perhaps fifteen or twenty, and remarked complacently:

"Mr. President, I strongly suspect the absence of a quorum, but I suppose no other Senator will agree with me."

He then resumed reading the book, stopping again after having wandered through a couple of sentences to observe:

"And if it were not for the Senate, I would ask leave to print, but unless the rules have been changed during my legislative day I cannot avail myself that privilege."

REMARKABLE ROMANCES OF THE DAVIS AND ELKINS FAMILIES. The present conspicuous romance of Miss Elkins and the Duke of the Abruzzi is merely one among the heirs to the romantic blood of Senator Henry G. Davis. Told in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

HARVARD MAN IS INJURED BY FALLING HORSE

Herbert Jaques, Jr., Has Narrow Escape from Death at Brookline Show.

Herbert Jaques, Jr., a Harvard freshman, was thrown from his horse when the animal stumbled in taking the second hurdle in the jumping class at the open-air horse show of the Chestnut Hill Riding Club, Brookline, today, and narrowly escaped being crushed to death. He is being attended at the home of Dr. Baldwin, near the grounds of the riding club. The physician said that he had discovered only a bad bruise on the head, where the young man was struck by one of the bars. He may have sustained internal injuries.

The event in which Jaques was hurt was the last on the morning program. He was riding Longwave, a big brown gelding owned by Arthur T. Vignoles. Longwave took the first hurdle in fine style and the plaudits of the big society gathering which had crowded following the event.

At the second hurdle the animal's knees struck against the top bar and he stumbled. As he fell he turned a complete somersault, and to those watching it seemed as though the rider had gone under him.

Victim a Harvard Runner.

Women rose to their seats and shrieked in fear while a number of those in charge of the show, including Herbert Jaques, father of the young rider, ran to his assistance. He seemed stunned when lifted to his feet, but recovered in a moment and said he could walk.

He was taken to Dr. Baldwin's house and as he was suffering considerable pain it was deemed wise to keep him there until further examination could be made.

Young Jaques is one of the fastest miler and half-mile runners of Harvard, and made records in interscholastic meets while he was at Volkmann school.

There was a big crowd at the show and the various classes were closely contested. The results:

Summary of Results.

Class 1—Ladies' saddle horse. Fourteen entries. Won by Robin Hood, grey gelding, owned by H. Parsons, second, Black Prince, black gelding, owned by Albertel Von Schneidau, third, Jester, roan gelding, owned by Franklin B. Sise, fourth, Lady Jane Gray, grey mare, owned by Miss Jane Gray.

Class 2—Ladies' conformation horse, to ride, won by Pepper, grey gelding, owned by Miss Carter. Patricia Paulsen, jr., second for L. A. Davis; third, Amber, chestnut gelding, owned by Miss Anne Peabody; fourth, Jackdaw, brown mare, owned by Mrs. Edwin F. Jaques.

Class 11—Ladies' saddle horses, twelve entries. won by Eugenia, brown mare, owned by J. A. Ford; Pepper, grey gelding, owned by Albert C. Clarke, third; Portia, brown mare, owned by Miss Amy Peabody; fourth, Dixie, brown gelding, owned by Miss Alice Thorndike.

Jumping class for horses, heavy weight, two entries, won by Longwave, chestnut gelding, owned by Charles L. Briggs; second, Dewey, grey gelding, owned by Francis Peabody, jr.

Jumping class for horses, light weight, four entries, won by Jimmie Ann, chestnut gelding, owned by Miss Edith Amms; second, Kingston, bay gelding, owned by Mrs. Nina Saltonstall; third, Iron Duke, brown gelding, owned by Miss Alice Thorndike.

This was the last event on the morning program. The afternoon events commenced at 2 o'clock.

3 HELD IN MYSTERY INTO MURDER PUZZLE

IDENTITY OF WORCESTER VICTIM IN DOUBT; POLICE TRACING CLEWS.

WORCESTER, May 30.—Three men are under arrest upon a technical charge of intimidation and detectives are making a rigid investigation to-day into the cause of the unknown man found dead in an open field in Grafton street, near the Boston & Albany Railroad tracks, early to-day with his head terribly crushed back of the left ear and his forehead bashed in.

An autopsy by Medical Examiner F. H. Baker to-day showed plainly that the man was murdered. He was killed in the street, the medical examiner said, and his body dragged into the field. The wood showed the attack had been made with a blunt instrument—an iron coupling pin, or perhaps a rock.

Man's Identity Yet in Doubt.

The dead man's identity is in doubt. Several claimed to identify him as Patrick Buck, or Burke, a restaurant employe. Others claimed he was Patrick Daly, also a restaurant employe. No one was certain about it. The police are as firm on the medical examiner in the belief that the man was murdered, probably in a drunken quarrel.

The body was found at 4 a. m. by Frank Mahoney and John Dunn. They were riding past the field when they saw the body in the grass, face upward and a cap over the face. All the pockets of the clothing save one, had been relieved of their contents. The exception was a watch pocket in the trousers, in which three $1 bills and a silver dollar were found.

Letter Found Near Body.

Thirty feet from where the body lay the police found a letter addressed to William Carroll, No. 75 Temple street, Worcester. Carroll, although known at that address, could not be found there. A trail of blood showed the body had been dragged from into a lot near the Grafton grain elevator and thence to a point within fifteen feet of the Bloomingdale road, near the railroad tracks.

John Stevenson, a plumber; James Higgins, a laborer, and Daniel McAuliff, a bricklayer, were found questioning the case in the street early in the morning, the police say, and were taken into custody. It is claimed they were intoxicated. The men are held for investigation.

AGED VETERAN SWOONS; FOUR HEAT VICTIMS

Four heat prostrations were reported by the police and at the hospitals this forenoon.

Henry F. Swett, aged seventy-one, residing at No. 17 Maryland street, Dorchester, and a member of Howes Post 157, G. A. R., was overcome on Meridian street while taking part in the East Boston Memorial Day parade. He is in a serious condition at the Relief Station.

James Crawford, aged forty-seven, No. 137 Havre street, East Boston, employed on the Cunarder Saxonia, was overcome at work and fell aboard. He struck a fender in his fall to the wharf, receiving an ugly gash over the eye. He is under treatment at the Relief Station.

Harold Gleason, twelve years old, of No. 6 Waverly street, Dorchester, and Clarence Cannon, ten years old, of No. 107 Munroe street, Dorchester, were overcome in Peabody Square and were attended by Dr. Davison. They were later sent to their homes.

NOTED BRITISH EDITOR GUEST AT LUNCHEON

Major George F. Gratwicke, president of the British International Association of Journalists, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by A. Shuman at the Boston Athletic Association yesterday afternoon to representatives of Boston papers. It was arranged in a character letter Shuman manner, and the guests enjoyed the afternoon thoroughly. Major Gratwicke expressed his pleasure at being able to meet so many of his craft on this side of the water. An attractive souvenir, done in red and gold, containing a likeness of the guest of honor, was presented by Mr. Shuman to those who attended.

The guests included: General Charles H. Taylor, Herbert S. Underwood, Charles H. Adams, F. W. Dunphy, Charles H. Tauber, jr., Police Commissioner Stephen O'Meara, Colonel B. F. Stevens, Arthur Warren, William O. Taylor, W. D. Sullivan, William A. Kenney, George Avery Morris, E. F. Harkins, Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Colonel W. E. OLD CY AT HIS BEST BEATS SENATORS, 6 TO 0

Cy Young took a fall out of the Senators in the morning game, which was won by the score of 6 to 0. It was a grand triumph for the old twirler, as the visitors got but one hit in the whole nine innings, and only twenty-eight men faced him.

The Red Sox had an easy time connecting with the youngster southpaw Burns, who lasted three innings, when he was derricked, and Case Patten relieved him.

Rhoney went to centre in place of Sullivan because of the left-hand pitchers, and the Bullet was in the game all the time. Lord was the big sticker, getting four hits in five times up. McConnell, as usual, did some electrifying base running, and scored three of the runs.

Homer Cravath kept up his batting, pushing out two doubles which brought in three runs.

The only regret over the outcome was the fact that the Senators got one hit, which spoiled Young's feat of getting a no-hit game. Freeman was the culprit who did the damage, but his hit did not come till the sixth inning. Young pitched a remarkable game, not passing a man, and fanning seven. The score:

CRACK RIDERS IN BIG BIKE RACE AT REVERE BEACH

MORAN. MacLEAN.

HAYES MAY BE HARD CUSTOMER FOR MATTY

Ring followers appreciate the fact that Matty Baldwin, who has no peer in the East in his class, meets a tartar to-night at the Armory A. A., who will give the popular Charlestown lad all the trouble he can handle and is likely to be a much more formidable opponent for Baldwin to win over.

Matty has fought some hard matches, but those who are familiar with Hayes' style of milling say that he is the one lad, outside of Attell, who has any show of beating Baldwin, not excepting Tommy Murphy, who Matty has beaten.

As a boxing card at the big club the members have an attraction which from every angle can be called a hit sketch that will stagle, one which will not want for action and one continual thrills to perambulate up and down the spinal column.

Hayes has done so well in his recent bouts in the East that he will be quite a curiosity hereabouts, and there will be many who fancy his chances at the ring side.

His is the style that gives the on looker all the best of it, as from the moment that the bout starts he gets down to business, and he keeps going like a house afire until the bell tolls the time to cease.

Speedy and fast on his feet, a punisher with both hands, and game, Hayes will be a revelation to those who gather at the ringside, and some of the best local judges who have seen the Chicago boy in action are very confident that he will upset the Charlestown lad before the bout has reached its limit.

Two excellent eight-round bouts will also be the main event. In the opener George Alger of Cambridge will face Young Lincoln of Haverhill, and these lads engaged in a rugged eight-round bout a few weeks ago.

In the other event Jonny Lynch of Cambridge will meet Tommy Rawson of East Boston, and they are clever.

The show will start promptly at 8:15, and that the out of town members of the club can reach their homes at a reasonable hour.

30,000 PEOPLE SAW AUTOS CLIMB HILL

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., May 30.—In a downpour of rain, and over the mile course made as hard and smooth as stone by the oil and water, the hill-climbing contest of the Bridgeport Automobile Club's sport was run off to-day. About 30,000 persons, all autos within the vicinity, went to Hill, which in one place reaches a 9 per cent. grade, and cheered many of the fine drivers strained every effort to equal last year's record of 1 minute and 25 seconds, made by Tracy in a Locomobile.

The winners in the various classes of events follow:

Class A, gasoline cars, $850, and under—Maxwell, 12 horse power, driven by W. Pollard, Time, 2:20 3-5.

No. 2, gasoline cars, $850 to $1,250: Overland, 22 horse power, C. C. Parker, Time, 1:41 1-5.

No. 3, gasoline cars, $1,251 to $3,000: Jackson, 30 horse power, H. Miller, Time, 1:32 2-5.

Class B, gasoline touring cars, $2,000 to $3,000: Thomas, 32 horse power, Harry Tuttle, Time, 1:32 2-5.

No. 2, gasoline touring cars, $3,001 to $5,000: Stoddard-Dayton, 36 horse power, Harry Tuttle, Time, 1:29.

No. 6, gasoline cars, $3,000 to $4,000: Stoddard-Dayton, 36 horse power, Harry Tuttle, Time, 1:30 4-5. (Same car as previous event.)

No. 7, gasoline cars, $4,001 and over: gasoline cars: Pope-Hartford, 40 to 50 horse power, driven by R. Poole. Time, 1:27 1-5. (Fastest time for this event. Poole made entire flat climb; several steams. C. F. Alcott, time 1:32 2-5; second, K. Swan, 1:25.

Event No. 8, for amateur drivers, Cranford Cup —Won by Smith, 50 horsepower, driven by Kenneth McNeil. Time, 1:20 3-5; second, Sharon, 30 horsepower, Berg, time 1:22; third, Marmon, 44 horsepower, Parish, time 1:23 2-5.

Event No. 9, for Bridgeport Trades Cup, free-for-all—Won by Smith, 50 horsepower, McNeil, time 1:37; second, Columbia, 25 horsepower, Arthur Berg, time 1:19 4-5; third, Simplex, 50 horsepower, N. W. Bishop, 1:20 3-5.

In the last event Poole fairly outdid himself, beating his record for the course hump up in the seventh event, doing over the course in the incredible fast time of one minute and 17 seconds. In all the day's events better time was made, the record for last year being broken by many seconds, many times. There were no accidents.

YAMA CHRISTY GETS STAKE AT HUNT RACES

Special to the Boston American.

UNITED HUNT RACING ASSOCIATION, BELMONT PARK, May 30.—Probably a thousand people went out this morning to the course of the United Hunt Racing Association, which just in the rear of the fashionable Belmont Park. The programme of four steeplechase races, distinguished by the names of Clark Cup, the Timbertoppers Selling Hurdle Plate, the Decoration Day Stakes and the Hunt Cup, were run off with a view to the Lawrence Legane cup, a selling race at a mile. Seven book bookmakers accommodated the wagering public. Admission was $2, while the fifty cents you could save by not in an open lot, see the races and watch society pass by on the lawn.

The course was picturesque and the sport interesting.

The Results.

BENEDICTS WON GAME

In a game that was marked by many humorous incidents the married men of the Douglas Club defeated the single men by a score of 7 to 6 at Columbus Park, South Boston, to-day, before a crowd of several hundred people.

Former Councilor Jeremiah J. McNamara was the pitcher for the married men and his delivery was we'l handled by Joe Dunn. The battery of the single men was composed of Martin and O'Meara, pitchers, and Dooley, catcher. One of the features of the game and one that attracted considerable interest was the spirited coaching for the married men of Fred Sheehan, a well-known druggist of the peninsula district.

NOTED TROTTER REGALO DEAD

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 30.—Regalo, the sensational green trotter that had been entered extensively through the Grand Circuit by W. L. Durfee with the expectation that he would prove a second Sonoma Girl this year, is dead.

He was so sick when Durfee shipped his racing string East to Wheeling, W. Va., where he is due to arrive June 2, that he had to be left here at the track.

Regalo jumped into the limelight by a mile in 2:09 at a matinee here last Christmas, and was considered capable of racing right in 2:05 before the close of the season.

RED SOX SELL CARLISLE.

Walter Carlisle, of the Red Sox, has been sold to Kansas City. He played with Minneapolis in 1902, going to the Northern League in 1903 and 1904. In 1905 and 1906 he was with Rock Island in the Illinois-Iowa League. In 1907 he played for Los Angeles in the Pacific Coast League. His position is left field. He batted last year .260.

COLIN READY TO RACE AGAIN

NEW YORK, May 30.—Colin is fit and ready for a race at any moment, if the track conditions had been good to-day she would have been run in the Van Cortlandt Circuit by W. B. Durfee with the expectation that he would prove a second Sonoma Girl this year, is dead.

He was so sick when Durfee shipped his racing string East to Wheeling, W. Va., where he is due to arrive June 2, that he had to be left here at the track.

Regalo jumped into the limelight by a mile in 2:09 at a matinee here last Christmas, and was considered capable of racing right in 2:05 before the close of the season.

WHITE SOX RELEASE HART.

CHICAGO, May 30.—"Hub" Hart has been released by President Comiskey of the White Sox to the Montgomery Southern League Club. Hart was born with the Sox since the middle of the season of 1906, joining the South Side team after graduating from Georgetown University.

LALLY WON ROAD RACE

The ten-mile handicap road race of the Pastime Athletic Club of Dorchester, from the Columbia road gymnasium at Upham's Corner to the terminus of the Blue Hill parkway, this morning was won by P. J. Lally, scratch man, who covered the distance in fifty-eight minutes. There were twenty-five starters. One of the prettiest features of the race was the struggle for second place between William Fitzgerald and F. J. Callahan. They rode neck and neck into the stretch and Fitzgerald won by a narrow margin. The order of finish and time of the first five prizewinners were:

First prize, gold medal—P. J. Lally, scratch, 58 minutes.

Second prize, silver medal—William Fitzgerald, 2 minutes 40 seconds.

Third prize, bronze medal—F. J. Callahan, 3 minutes.

Fourth prize, bronze medal—Frank Stultz, 2 minutes.

Fifth prize, bronze medal—Ashton Warick, 2 hour 3 minutes.

HARVARD WELD CREW WINNER

WORCESTER, May 30.—The Harvard Weld eight defeated the Worcester High crew by three-quarters of a length over the one and one-half-mile course in Lake Quinsigamond this morning, the time being 7m. 58s.

BAN JOHNSON LEAVES.

President Ban Johnson of the American League left Boston for his home in Chicago yesterday afternoon.

SEVERAL CHANGES MADE IN THE BASEBALL CONTEST

With a day's rest in the published list of the contestants in the BOSTON AMERICAN Baseball Contest for the most popular professional and amateur player the result to date shows a number of changes in the standing, several having jumped ahead of their rivals in the score, though the leaders remain the same as for the past ten days, "Old Cy" Young for the professionals and Curdin, the top of the list for the amateurs.

Little Mickey Doolan takes the place occupied so long by Beaumont, third in the standing, Wagner goes up ahead of Flaherty, while Wagner has advanced to Lajoie's fourth position over Speaker, Laporte and Mellale, and is now on the heels of Lord.

Sharpy is the biggest gainer for the amateurs by going five positions nearer to the front and is only a few votes back of Todd. Todd is another who jumped, he having passed Pendergast. A new arrival in the published list is Nies of the Swamscott High. Since the opening of the contest he has been receiving a scattering vote, but now that his name comes into print it is hoped his friends will rally more strongly to his support. Following is the standing of the players to date:

The Summer Vacation

To Go or Not to Go? That's the Question

By DOROTHY DIX

IN these parlous matrimonial times, when it is even more difficult to keep a husband than it is to catch one, the Summer vacation presents a new and heart-rending problem to women.

It is now a question not only of ways and means and places, but of risks. It is not only the difficulty of finding the money, and getting the clothes, and deciding on the Summer resort, but the danger that during one's absence one's husband may get lost, strayed or stolen.

So the women who recite Fast she resist needs a change has to sit down and figure out whether she isn't liable to get more variety buried into her domestic life than she wants if she goes away; while on the other hand she fears that if she doesn't go, but remains a permanent fixture in the home, she may prove a case of "too much Mrs. Johnson," and that the monotony of always finding the same old wife in the same old place may get on her husband's nerves and drive him from her.

In a word, she does not know whether to go or to stay; whether to take a vacation or to do it out, for she has observed that, while absence makes the heart grow fonder, there are occasions when it makes it grow fonder of someone else.

Undoubtedly this is a very serious problem, and there is much to be said on both sides of the question.

The woman who believes in sticking to her post may truly argue that there is great virtue in proximity. Ninety per cent. of the marriages are the result of people being thrown together and getting used to each other's little ways and whims, and so by degrees becoming more or less necessary to each other's happiness.

The Trust Spirit

There was no real affinity or attraction between them, but some day the man fell sentimental and the woman felt lonesome. She felt like he wanted to tell some body he loved her, and the woman happened to be Sally-on-the-Spot, and so they were married.

If propinquity is so valuable in courtship it would seem that it ought to be equally valuable in matrimony. If a man talks in love with a woman because she is the one most immediately in sight, it looks as if the only logical and safe thing for her also is to keep herself always blocking up the highway, and many wives subscribe to this faith.

There are women who never leave their husbands for a single day. They drag around the country with their Johns, when John goes off on a business trip.

They learn to play golf because John likes it, though it makes blisters on their feet to trot around the links.

They pretend an enthusiasm for fishing, though it seems to them a doomed, motiveless, unpleasant business, but it achieves its object because they keep their husbands always nearly strung on the domestic line.

There is the matrimonial trust spirit. They establish such a monopoly on a man that it heads off all competition.

It cannot be denied that there is much to be said in support of this view of the situation. There is nothing like keeping a man at home of evenings like making him understand that ce'gar is not to be smoked along if he goes, or that if he does go he has to render a strict account of himself when he returns.

There's an old proverb to the effect that when the wife's away the husband will play, and without doubt the man who is perpetually chaperoned is the model of discretion.

Besides this, unsentimental as it is, after the first romantic affection has burnt itself out domestic love is mainly a good habit, and so long as nothing occurs to break up the custom of a man making a bee line from his work to his fireside he is an apt to stick to the beaten track as an old work horse is to its place in the treadmill.

Becomes a Yoke

In addition, comparisons are not only "odorous," as Mrs. Partington says, but they are dangerous. So long as nothing occurs to break up the illusion of a man thinking his Maria a handsome woman, and her little peculiarities as merely feminine eccentricities, and her way of talking about the little gossip of the neighborhood as a fair sample of a woman's conversational ability, he is liable to be perfectly content in matrimonial harness.

But let Maria suddenly herself from the scene. Let the man meet some young and beautiful woman, who is flattering to him, who sympathizes and sympathy, who understands his half word, who responds to his every mood, and who sees the little point of a joke that he couldn't explain to Maria with a diagram—and, by Jacks, there's mischief to done.

The man may be honorable enough and good enough, and he generally is, to poke his head back under the yoke that Maria has worn home, but thenceforward the matrimonial hood is not a silken band, but a fetter.

There is no disputing that she is a wise woman who holds on to her man with both hands, and she is still wiser who keeps so close to her husband that he never gets a perspective on her, so that he can see her as she really is.

Therefore the unimaginative woman, or the woman who is so much in love with her husband that she doesn't feel that she will throw the coffee pot at his head if he asks her to look at him another morning, and who is married to the unimaginative sort of a man who can eat round beef and potatoes three hundred and sixty-five times a year, does well never to pack her grip and go off for a vacation by her lonely.

Let her take her turning with her husband. She has got a good thing, and as long as she sticks to it she will never lose it.

WHEN BETTY AND BILLY ARE BUILDING THEIR OPAL-COLORED CASTLES OF SPAIN

IS MARRIAGE A FAILURE? HARDLY!

No. 1—The First Phase; Some Call It the Sweetest and the Best

By NELL BRINKLEY

WHEN you pick out two folks and watch them through all the best and biggest phases of their two lives together—their lives from the time when their blood and hearts are young and they first love, each the other one, through all the long time that they are mates—if they love well and long, you will see that being married is like being blessed him off to one side.

"Stace," he says, "you're wanted up to the house right away. Spike Hildreth's here. Now brace yourself, Stace, an' hear it like a man."

"What is it?" asks Stace.

"It's your wife, neighbor," says Jim. "I hate like the devil to tell you, but she took a fit of apperplexy, an'—an'—"

"Has she passed away?" asks Stace, Jim nodded.

Stace sighed. After a while he says, "Now, ain't that too bad! Sure enough, is too bad! Well, misfortunes will happen an' it's sinful to repine. There ain't no use o' cryin' over spilled milk, anyway."

"Stace," says Hancock, "a man may let a lot o' pesky little trifles throw him clear off an' get him all worked up, but when suthin' real calamitous an' serious strikes him he can be as cal'm as a Summer day. Either that or—or—Did you have any insurance on that 'ere wife o' his'n, Bill?"

"Yes, it was insured," replied the man with the gum boots.

"Well, maybe he didn't need to be so turr'ble put out over it," said Hancock.

The Hand of Calamity

When a Real Blow Came, Stace Bore It Like a Man

By KENNETT HARRIS

"I RECKON Palmer took that mighty hard?" said the storekeeper to the agriculturist with the gum boots. "He must have had a right smart o' hay in them stacks. Did they ketch the tramp?

"Couldn't find hide nor hair of him," replied the man with the gum boots. "Palmer wasn't so turr'ble put out as you'd think. Said if 'twas gone, 'twas gone, an' that was all there was about it."

"That's the right way to look at things," observed Sol Baker. "What's the use of complainin'? It don't do no good. It's goin' to be all the same a hundred years from now, anyway. What's done can't be helped, an' there's no use cryin' over spilled milk."

"Reminds me o' Stace Pascoe," drawled Washington Hancock from his perch by the cheesebox. "That's what Stace's wife was always tellin' him when she wasn't tellin' him suthin' else. She undertook the job o' trainin' Stace when she married him. 'Years like he didn't meet her likes the way she thought he was goin' to when he was sparked here."

"He's a many o' them," sighed the storekeeper, "and sometimes the shoe's on the other foot. There's many men whose wives don't turn out the way they thought they was goin' to."

The Way With Stace

"I reckon that was the way with Stace, too," said Hancock. "Stace undertook to do a little trainin' on his own account at first, but he gave up in about a week. He seen it wasn't no use buckin' against the alterations at wunst.

"Stace never did let things worry him a heap. To hear him talk you'd a thought the Lord Almighty had fit down on the pesky little particulars. The meanest kind o' luck that kin be piled on to a feller was piled on to Stace. I reckon he's had to mast a been a quarter of an inch thick. 'I'm been hurled right slap in the mud a time,' remarked Marvin Parsons.

"Did you ever have your hay get loose in your corn lest as it was tuwelvin out?" asked Hancock. "That's what happened to Stace wunst. Seven hungry shoats all chasin' after his corn-piled hay at wunst, if they didn't chomp. I come along just after Stace had got 'em penned up agin, an' the tears run down his face as big as a dawg had tore the ear mighty nigh off one o' the shoats. Why do you think it was for?

"Was things then that was fairly flowed," said the storekeeper.

"That's wunst Stace's wife told him," said Hancock. "Stace looked at her an' he says, 'Yes, but not nerve June, 1881.'

"What did he mean by that?" asked Parsons.

"Plague-goned if I know," replied Hancock. "Must a been some kind of a minor verse'y. Anyway, while Stace was a-goin' along until one morning Stace went out to the barnyard to milk an' found he had two cows, one a little Jersey that was goin' in' an' didn't give down more'n about three pints, an' the other one o' these long-legged Holsteins.

Did Have Hard Luck

"Well, sir, gentlemen, he milked the Jersey first an' then he went an' begun on the Holstein. He'd got pretty nigh through, an' the pail was brimmin' up to the top when a fly or suthin' lighted on the old cow an' she tried to wipe it off with her foot an' caught the side o' the pail an' tipped it over.

"That kind o' skeeered her an' she hauled off with a sidewise kick that took Stace in the pit of his stomach an' she kicked the pail an' the rest o' the milk over him as she walked off.

"'Well, you jest ought to have heard Stace. There was three gallons o' good fresh morning's milk gone forsamech, him everlastin'ly forever. I never heard a man take on so.

"'If I'd only thought an' milked the Jersey last I'd have had some milk left anyway,' he says.

"'If ifs an' an's was pots an' pans there'd be no trade for tinkers,' says Mrs. Pascoe. 'Now, I jest don't want to hear another livin' thing about that there milk. You take that pail out to the barn an' try an' get suthin' straighten out them bulges in it. Git, now!'

"Stace took the pail an' went to the barn with it an' all the time he was hammerin' you could hear him a talkin' on about that milk. Pretty soon he give a awful howlin' yell an' come runnin' up to the kitchen door.

"'Plague take an' consarn the measly, dodrotted, blamed luck!' he says. 'I sprung a leak in the pail now!'

Bore Up Like a Hero

"So the afternoon Stace hitched up an' went to town. I reckon he thought he might get more sympathy there. He made the rounds o' the stores an' told what had happened to him, an' when Jim Hildreth had tried to him an' cheer him up Stace he was still grievin' over how Jim Hildreth, that lived neighbor to him found him in Barker's an' was a-buyin' him off to cheer him.

"Stace," he says, 'you're wanted up to the house right away. Spike Hildreth's here. Now brace yourself, Stace, an' hear it like a man.'

"'What is it?' asks Stace.

"'It's your wife, neighbor,' says Jim. 'I hate like the devil to tell you, but she took a fit of apperplexy, an'—an'—'

"Has she passed away?' asks Stace. Jim nodded.

"Stace sighed. After a while he says, 'Now, ain't that too bad! Sure enough, is too bad! Well, misfortunes will happen an' it's sinful to repine. There ain't no use o' cryin' over spilled milk, anyway.'

"'Stace,' says Hancock, "a man may let a lot o' pesky little trifles throw him clear off an' get him all worked up, but when suthin' real calamitous an' serious strikes him he can be as cal'm as a Summer day. Either that or—or—Did you have any insurance on that 'ere wife o' his'n, Bill?'

"Yes, it was insured," replied the man with the gum boots.

"Well, maybe he didn't need to be so turr'ble put out over it," said Hancock.

Expert Hints on Beauty

By the Professor

RED AND ROUGH FACE.

DEAR PROFESSOR:

I am greatly troubled and ashamed because I have such a red and rough face. Will you please tell me what to do for it? I have tried lots of so-called remedies, but have received no benefit. Sulphur and molasses seem to do it good, but my blood is so bad that causes it and will several baths do any good? I have had the same trouble for as long as I can remember.

TRY using a cleansing cream made of equal parts of almond oil and orange flower water to half the quantity of white wax. Use this instead of water, rubbing plenty on and wiping it off with a soft old linen cloth or a piece of soft cheesecloth. Then dust the face with rice powder. Often soap and water will keep a very sensitive skin in a constant state of redness and roughness. Be careful of your diet and dab the face with peroxide occasionally before anointing with a good skin food at night. If you do not get relief, go to a physician for treatment of whatever it is which causes your blood to be in a bad condition. Opening the pores by Turkish bath process does much toward cleansing skin, but the redness is another thing.

BRUSH CURLY HAIR.

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Kindly advise me how to keep my hair model. I have curly hair, and if I do not wet it for a few days it becomes so dry that I am unable to comb it at all. It will only stay parted longer than two or three hours.

A READER.

TRY the vaseline treatment instead of using any water on the hair. Water always makes the hair curly. Rub a few drops of vaseline well into the scalp every night, the object being to feed the roots and not to oil the hair. The latter will be taken care of naturally if you get the scalp in good condition. Massage the scalp well every time you apply the vaseline, and do not shampoo except when actually necessary. Brush the hair every minute of time you can spare. Don't use a harsh brush that will irritate the scalp, but one that will give a shine to the hair.

The Manicure Lady

She Meets a Real Gentleman, and Likes It

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"THAT man you just seen passing out, George," said the Manicure Lady, "was a Southern gentleman.

"How do you know?" asked the Head Barber.

"Because he didn't say he was," replied the Manicure Lady. "He had a nice low voice, and said 'you all' and 'I reckon,' but never once did he even hint that he was from the South.

"Long years in the manicure business, George, has given me deep insight into human nature, and I can tell a true gent from a shine the minute he dips his hand into the soap water.

"As the great poet once said, kind hearts is more than coronants, and every true gent has a kind heart. He don't have a kind heart in his business."

"The great poet didn't say 'Kind hearts is more than coronants,' because cornerants is some kind of a chicken hawk," said the Head Barber. "What the poet wrote was 'Kind hearts is more than coronet lots,' meaning that a man didn't need to own a lot of real estate to be the real McCoy in the gentleman line.

"I hate to contradict you, because it ain't your fault, that you don't have my early advantages."

Didn't Get Fresh

"Well, anyhow," declared the Manicure Lady, "this Southern gent I'm telling you about was one of the best customers I have had since the good old days before money was tight.

"He gave me a fifty-cent tip, but that wasn't the best of it. He didn't get fresh once. He didn't tell me my eyes was like the depths of caves of Dem Ipsoid pools in some sequestered glade, and he didn't ask me to fly with him to Arcady.

"Where is Arcady, George? Almost every day I get a come-on here asks me to fly with him to Arcady, there to live an ideal life and die when the crimson sun is shining on the western horizon. I often wondered where Arcady was.

"I think it's on the Erie," said the Head Barber, "but what about the chap from Dixie?

"He was just grand, George. He told me all about the beautiful magnolia blossoms around the old homestead, and how the old negro mammy used to bring him to sleep when he was a little tot, and how his mother used to stand out on the veranda in a white dress that made her look like an angel. But that's all he said about the South.

"I reckon the reason for that is, George, that he has lived in the South all his life and is only here to visit. It's the ones that was never any farther South than the South Side in Chesterwitt and that is now living in New York, them's the ladies and gents that never allow the honor of dear old Dixie to get under a bushel. If it wants to get under the bushel, they are all the time pushing it out.

"One night last week one of that kind of Southern gents came up to the house to call on sister Mamie. He took me out to a little cafe, and when they played 'Dixie' he clapped so hard that it sounded like some body beating a carpet.

"'Way don't you applaud?' he asks me and Mamie. 'I don't know the tune,' says Mamie. 'Wait till we play the Merry Widow Waltz and I will be there with the kind cheers.'

"He told me and Mamie that he belonged to the Southern colony downtown, and asked us why we didn't join. We told him we couldn't think of joining because we was both born in Brooklyn.

"'That's all right,' says he, 'wasn't some of your ancestors from the South?' 'No,' says I, 'they came from Denmark.'

"'Join anyway,' he says. 'It's lots of fun. It ain't hard to join,' he says. 'They almost let a Chinaman join once because his last name was Lee.'

Reason for Color Line

"There's some dandy guys come from the South," said the Head Barber, "and some mighty sweet ladies. My wife is a Southern woman. She's the sweetest little gal you ever seen, too."

"Sure," agreed the Manicure Lady. "Far be it from me, George, to knock the South or its people. It's the near-Southerners I don't like—always have been.

"This feller that just left the shop is my kind of Southerners, and I ain't a bit backward about saying that I think mighty well of him. Of course, I s'pose he has the same ideas as most Southerners, and wouldn't like to have Booker Washington on his knee with him, and maybe he wouldn't like to shake hands with Joe Gans, but he's all right.

"You can't blame a fellow for not wanting to shake hands with Joe Gans," said the Head Barber. "Lots of white fellows, both in Baltimore and Poor Trinidad, has shaken hands with Joe, usually at the beginning of the first round, and it brought 'em bad luck every time. Next!"

Martyrdom of Mothers

Neglect No Chance to Help One of That Patient Army

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"A mother is a mother still, the holiest thing on earth."

THE day was suffocatingly hot, and I stood outside the Free Dispensary, watching the sad little procession of mothers and babies that came and went.

Occasionally a mother would come out grasping her baby fiercely and with a look of such acute woe and misery on her face that it brought the tears to my eyes.

It needed no words to tell me that she had either watched her child suffer, or had been gently told that nothing could be done for it.

It was such a piteous procession—the mothers with the look of deathless mother love in their eyes, the babies with their patient little wizened faces and pain-racked bodies.

As I watched them I thought, "Is anything on earth of such importance as these mothers and babies?"

It is easy to call people together and discuss ways for improving the condition of the poor, but while theorists are discussing as to the best plan the babies are dying.

Only a Mother Knows

Imagine the feelings of the woman who looks at her child slowly wasting away! What does she care about the best plan for helping the multitude? All she knows is that her own baby is suffering.

Those of you who can do anything to help one little child through the hot Summer months will be doing a great work.

If you see a woman wearily staggering along with a wan looking baby in her arms, go up to her and ask her if you can help her in any way.

No people on earth are of such vital importance as the mothers.

They cannot be shown too much honor and consideration.

Deepest of Misery

You may sing a great song, paint a great picture; but the very least of the mothers has done more than that—she has brought a human being into the world.

You may be blue and discontented and feel that life goes hard with you, but unless you are a mother and have seen your child hungry or in pain, you have never touched the depths of misery.

Supposing the mother with a sick child were to take it in her arms and walk into the first shop of prosperous house she came to and say: "My child is starving. Give me food, prosperous owner, he it man or woman: 'Look at my baby. He needs air; he needs love; he needs food; help me to give them to him."

Do you think her appeal would be made in vain? I am quite sure it would not.

The trouble is that we hear of these sad cases but we don't actually see them; and to realize suffering we must actually see it.

If you get a chance to do anything in that patient army of mother martyrs, don't neglect it.

Above all things honor and respect them, for they are the best people on earth.

MEN'S CLOTHES HINTS

MAN'S figure is no longer the Doric creation represented by Gibson.

It is a thing of Attic grace, with drooping shoulders and corseted waist.

The days of the Hercules are gone.

The new man must be a poetic gray.

His clothes, indeed, may be properly referred to as a toilette.

They must fall in voluminous folds about his hips and snuggle around his waist.

His bluff Panama will become a dainty, high-crowned thing, with scarcely a brim.

The good Tyrolean hat will also give a chic finish to his costume.

His shoestring will be a plaid one, and his derby will be of English gray.

At least, this is what the fashion prophets of "Vanity Fair" have told us.

ABOUT WOMEN

THE pleasure of talking is the inexplainable passion of women, coeval with the act of breathing.—Lesage.

Women, like governments, condemn to imprisonment and hard labor those accused of mankind.—Balzac.

A man does good work out of all proportion to his pay, in seven cases out of eight. In the eighth, a woman at the back of the virtue.—Kipling.

Women grow old at one mouthful the life that flatters, and drink drop by drop a tenth that is bitter.—Disraeli.

There are beautiful flowers that are scentless and beautiful women that are unlovable.

SUMMER PREDICTIONS

LONG sleeves are making gradual headway, and it is advisable to have a few Summer dresses made with them.

The heavy diet laces gain constantly in popularity and have quite superseded the Irish and Venice.

Very smart colored effects are this year obtained in the dotted Swisses.

Cluny lace, the color of the dot, is combined with the Swiss and the dress is worn over a slip of self color or white.

Straw ailings, pongee shades and other light yellow tones are much sought in cotton stuffs.

The Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

MAKE NO CONCESSIONS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty years old and have been keeping company with a young man for years my senior. I love him very much, and have had reason to believe he loved me up till two months ago. Of a sudden he discontinued calling on me without apparent cause, and even refused to recognize my existence to him. We were engaged to be married in June, but since his refusal to call on me I have seen him on four different occasions on the street with another young lady, whose parents are considered quite wealthy.

Each time that I have met him with this girl he scarcely noticed me. I am quite heart-broken over the affair, but being very proud I do not have the slightest idea of him ever concessions or not. HEARTBROKEN.

I DO not think, dear, that you should consider yourself engaged to him. He is a faithless young man and not worth wasting any more time on. I am sorry that you feel so badly, but do not see that you can do anything. Be civil when you meet and do not let him see that you care, but do not take any steps toward a reconciliation.

THE BELT PROBLEM

THE tailored belt, one and a half inches wide and stitched, made to match the skirt—whether of cloth, silk or linen—is one of the solutions of the belt problem.

Then there is the old-time belting of ribbon, plain or watered, worn trimly about the waist and buckled in front; also, the soft belt of ribbon or silk, crushed and worn with one pointed end pulled through the buckle. These belts would make absolutely the skirt, or even the new colored blouses, to insure color harmony.

MONDAY BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

For Monday's best opportunities for Boston's busy shoppers see shoppers' complete guide in to-morrow's

SUNDAY AMERICAN.

ANCIENTS IN REAL BATTLE WITH O'MEARA

"Be Quiet" Says He, "Or I'll Have You Pinched,"—Oh, Cruelty!

BARS DRUM CORPS AT 4 A. M.

If you got all tired out on Sunday trying to get rested for Monday's work and you heard that a drum corps was to parade in front of your house at 4 o'clock Monday morning and then "Stevie" O'Meara had declared that the drum corps concert couldn't be played, wouldn't it make you glad?

But it has happened to be an Ancient and Honorable Artillerist of Boston and was working overtime to keep sacred all the customs of antiquity that the Honorables know, wouldn't it make you mad?

If "Stevie" O'Meara has anything to say about it, and "Stevie" thinks he will, there'll be no drum corps concert by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company in the young hours of June 1, 1908. He really calls the Ancients' ancient custom of drum beating at 4 a. m. "a disturbance." It looks like the hardest battle the Ancients ever fought if they let loose the drums in districts barred by the Police Commissioner.

Stephen says he'll prosecute the drum beaters if they beat; the Ancients say if the drums don't beat at 4 a. m. one of their customs that has existed for so long that Rib Eden folks really have forgotten why, will go all to smash.

But "Stevie" is hard hearted. In a brief letter of 900 or 800 words he writes the Ancients: "Now you be quiet or I'll have you pinched."

Cruel words.

The Ancients had planned to set off their drum corps on Columbus avenue, in Greenwich Park, Berkeley, Exeter and other localities where people sleep, but Stephen says it's all off. If the drum corps must make a noise, says the Commissioner, let it be where no one is sleeping during the night time. For instance, Egypt, Africa, Asia Minor. That thinks Stephen, will arouse nobody and will prevent disturbing the comfort and convenience of several thousand tired folks in fifteen districts of the city where the drum corps had planned to beat.

SIEGEL OFFERS RECORD SALE OF SHIRT WAISTS

Entire Stock of Holzman Company Marked Down for the Greater Boston Women.

Announcement is made by the Henry Siegel Company that the entire stock of the Holzman Manufacturing Company of Baltimore, Md., the makers of the famous Marquise lingerie shirtwaists, has been purchased and will shortly be placed on sale in Boston at greatly reduced prices.

The consummation of the deal marked the largest transaction in the history of the shirtwaist business, over 15,000 waists being purchased. The entire stock was worth $28,845.15, and was bought at exactly half price, $13,422.58.

The Holzman Co.'s shirtwaists have long been popularly known to all women throughout New England. They combine both style and wearing qualities. Only the Siegel chain of stores with its enormous purchasing power was able to handle this tremendous quantity of shirtwaists at one time, and it was thereby enabled to obtain the entire stock at a record-breaking price.

Big preparations have been made by the Siegel Co. for the sale of the shirtwaists in their magnificent Boston department store. Extra saleswomen have been engaged, the shirtwaist department has been enlarged for the occasion and bargain tables will be placed on the main floor. There are nearly 100 styles in the big quantity of shirtwaists.

HONOR MEMORY OF VETS OF CHELSEA SOLDIERS' HOME

The graves of soldiers who spent their last days in the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea were not left undecorated on the fortieth of Gettysburg Post 191 visited the Forest Dale Cemetery in Malden and placed American flags on the graves, while members of the Ladies' Aid Society made up bouquets and placed them beside the flags.

Close to a hundred members of the post assembled to-day at their headquarters, No. 3 Boylston place, and marched to the North station, boarding a train for Malden.

At the cemetery a memorial address was delivered by Rev. Lucius D. Mayne of St. Mark's Methodist Church of Brookline.

G. A. R. VETERANS HONOR THEIR DEAD COMRADES

HOLD SERVICES AND LAY WREATHS ON GRAVES IN CEMETERIES.

Throughout Greater Boston to-day the veterans of the War of the Rebellion gathered at the headquarters of their Grand Army posts and marched to the cemeteries to hang a wreath on each headstone or iron star that marks the resting place of the heroes who fought to save their country.

Each post had its special place of decoration, and the work was so divided that every known grave of a soldier had its mark of respect paid.

The old veterans were not alone in the duty. The younger patriots of the Spanish war turned out with fife and drum, bugle and horn and performed the same office for their comrades of the later fight.

Edward Kingsley Post.

Edward W. Kingsley Post 113, G. A. R. began the observance of Memorial Day early by dispatching a large floral piece to the elders' Monument on the Common. The members of the post assembled in Odd Hall at 9 o'clock, escorted by the Seventh Company Coast Artillery corps and the Fifth Regiment Band, proceeded through Berkeley and Beacon streets to the Soldiers' monument on the Common, where after a dirge had been played by the band, the commander placed the large floral star which had been sent earlier in the day in place. The comrades who took part in this ceremony are Thomas L. O'Brien, William E. Murdock, John B. Wellington and Chaplain J. F. L. Bodfish.

When this ceremony was completed, the line of march, under command of Colonel Bodfish, A. Parker, was taken up to Mount Temple, where an elaborate program was carried out. The oration was by Rev. William H. Faunce, president of Brown University. At these exercises the musical part was furnished by Comrade A. Parker Browne. The singing was by a chorus of Low school children under the direction of Mr. Leonard B. Marshal, and by a special chorus of ninety voices from the Latin School under the direction of Mr. John A. O'Shea.

On arriving at Tremont Temple the first thing done was to receive the colors and salute the flag. Rev. F. L. Bodfish made the invocation, and the roll of dead for the past year was read by Adjutant Oliver P. Bicker. Commander Bowdoin S. Parker then made an address, followed by Comrades Alden P. Pease, Greenleaf A. Goodale and George D. Mitchell. Lincoln's address at Gettysburg was read by Joseph L. Melvin of the Paul Jones Grammar School, East Boston.

After an address by Rev. Edward A. Horton, Dr. William H. Ruddick Istrofinished President Faunce's address.

The Post then adjourned to Young's Hotel, where the annual dinner was held, at which there were many invited guests.

Memorials in Churches.

Various other organizations held memorial services in the churches. This was especially true of the Foresters and the Knights of Columbus.

Members of Thomas G. Stevenson Post 26 of Roxbury marched to the Dutch street burying ground at 8 o'clock, and with the assistance of the Roxbury Historical Society performed the solemn services there. Rev. E. H. Dunn of East Boston was the orator of the day.

John Lee Post of East Boston, with an escort of Company H, Ninth Regiment, and Major Grady Camp, Spanish War Veterans, decorated graves in Woodlawn. Services were conducted by Rev. A. D. Shurtleff and Rev. A. J. Hughes.

K. of C. Services.

The Dorchester Lower Mills Council, Knights of Columbus, held memorial services at St. Gregory's church, Dorchester, at 9 o'clock. Rev. Edward Heaney made the address of the day. About 150 members of the council attended, going to it from their hall on Washington street, Lower Mills, to the church, under the direction of Grand Knight H. Duffy.

Rev. Fr. Florence Halloran of St. Peter's church, Meeting House Hill, conducted services at the church at 9 o'clock in memory of the members of the council. Court, M. C. O. F., who passed away during the year. Forming at Ellison Evening, the court marched to the church, headed by Dr. E. C. Towle, chief ranger.

Headed by a band, the John Drum Camp, United States War Veterans, gathered at Blake Hall, Field's Corner, at 8:45 and took special cars for New Calvary cemetery, Mattapan, where wreaths and flags were placed on the graves of thirty-five comrades. William J. Fitzgerald of South Boston was commander of the day. The camp was in charge of Commander George H. McQuillan.

Cambridge Celebration.

Everybody in Cambridge made it a point to help the four Grand Army posts of the city, in the observance of Memorial Day. All of the organizations affiliated with the G. A. R. turned out, school children and city officials did their part, militia companies did escort duty and Harvard College students helped.

Gathering in Quincy square soon after 8 o'clock the posts reported to J. Willard Hyland, commander of John A. Logan Post No. 186, who was chief marshal. A. J. Littlefield was chief of staff and Joseph W. Smith, James W. Emery, M. F. Marks and David A. Stevens, aids. Edward F. Smart Post No. 30, was in command of Lorenzo Brown; Charles Beck, No. 50, in command of G. W. Knowlton, P. Stearns Davis No. 57 in command of Thomas Cawley and John A. Logan No. 186 in command of Charles H. Titus.

Their escort from Quincy square to the soldiers' monument on Cambridge Common consisted of Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson Camp, No. 80, under Commander R. E. Stearns and C. O. Wellington Camp, 14, under Commander W. A. Parker.

At the Soldiers' monument prayer was offered by Rev. Richard Wright, chaplain of the day, and the monument was decorated with wreaths.

Following the exercises here, cars were taken for the corner of Coolidge avenue and Mt. Auburn street, where there was drawn up a battalion of militia who escorted the veterans as they formed in line. The battalion consisted of Company A, Eighth Regiment, Captain William J. Cowell; Company, Eighth Regiment, Captain Ralph Smith; Sixth Company of Coast Artillery, Captain H. B. Lovell; and A Company, Eighth Regiment, Captain George Jones. Leslie D. Hurley Camp 12, Legion of Spanish War Veterans.

Mayor Reviews Parade.

At the entrance to the cemetery the parade was reviewed by Mayor Walter C. Wardwell.

Rev. E. M. Gushee offered prayer at the old cemetery where the graves were decorated, while at the new cemetery Mayor Wardwell made the address. The same address at Gettysburg was read by Commander Parker of South Boston Post.

Post No. 50 at Harvard square on its return march was met by Harvard students and escorted through the college grounds. Memorial tablets in the yard and in Memorial Hall were decorated in the exercises of the Harvard Memorial Society in Sanders Theatre were attended by the members of Post 37 with Woman's Relief Corps 68 and Sons and Daughters of Veterans 28. In the evening a banquet in Odd Fellows' Hall.

Mrs. Alma H. Connant of Charles Beck Relief Corps and sixty-two school children, pupils of the school, marched to the cemetery at Auburn, and then went to the Charles River, where flowers were thrown into the water in memory of the unknown sailor dead.

In South Boston.

Memorial services were held by the G. A. R. posts and members of the Woman's Relief corps of South Boston to-day. Five courts of the Catholic Order of Foresters held special services at 88 Dover and Paul's Church on Broadway. Rev. Phillip H. Sexton officiated.

Dalgren Post No. 2, in command of Irving Gross, took special cars for Calvary Cemetery, where 100 graves were decorated. Graves at the Emerson street and Mt. Augustine cemeteries also were decorated. A collation was later served at the Paul's Parish hall on Broadway.

Major M. J. O'Connor Camp, S. W. V., commander John Dunn, held memorial services over the grave of Major O'Connor at Calvary Cemetery. Rev. William Grant of Paul's church conducted the services.

The Woman's Relief Corps No. 98, under the direction of Lue Stewart Wadsworth, deputy president, performed the services of strewing the waters of Dorchester Bay with flowers in commemoration of the drowned heroes who served in the navy. Several classes of the Dorchester Historical schools participated in the services and as the flowers were thrown into the water each class repeated a stanza of a poem written for the occasion. An address was made by Rev. Frederick M. Gardner. The singing of "America" concluded the services.

DECORATE EIGHT HUNDRED GRAVES AT DORCHESTER

Fully eight hundred graves of soldier dead were decorated in Dorchester cemeteries to-day.

The principal service was at Cedar Grove Cemetery, conducted jointly by the Grand Army veterans and the Sons of Veterans, including Post 20, G. A. R., under Commander David M. Gibson, and Nathaniel Bowditch Camp, No. 30, S. of V., under Commander E. J. Wallingford, assembled at 11 o'clock at the corner of Adams and Columbia streets in full uniform. There were eighty of the veterans in line and 140 of the Sons of Veterans.

Headed by the Post 68 Band, Frank Warren leader, the aged veterans and the younger men marched to the cemetery, where the graves were decorated with flags and potted plants. At Cedar Grove oration was delivered by Rev. Clifford H. Gray, pastor of the Stoughton street Baptist Church, with prayer by Chaplain Charles Simpson of the Post.

Services and decorations of graves in other Dorchester cemeteries were in charge of various Post and Camp details. At Codman cemetery on Norfolk street, and at the Catholic Cemetery at Dorchester Lower Mills at 2:30.

At the North Cemetery on Stoughton street members of the post and camp under Commander Gibson of the post, performed the services of prayer and decoration at 9:30.

FRANCO-PRUSSIAN VETERANS VISIT COMRADES' GRAVES

One hundred veterans of the Franco-Prussian War, members of the German Veterans' Prince Henry Association, gathered early to-day at their headquarters, Kossuth Hall, No. 1,095 Tremont street, and marched to the different cemeteries where they paid homage to their departed comrades.

The veterans were accompanied by a band and were under command of Captain N. B. Basch, commander of the association. Special cars were taken to the Holyhood Cemetery in Brookline, where services were held over the grave of John W. Strieder, formerly commander of the association, who died during the past year.

Cars were then boarded for Forest Hills Cemetery, where the graves of Paul Abel, John Klunz and John Metzger were decorated. The veterans then marched down Walkhill street to the new Catholic cemetery, where the services were held over the graves of Joseph Spang, who was formerly a captain of the society and who was one of its founders. They then proceeded to the home of Mrs. Spang and to the son, Joseph P., on Walkhill street, where refreshments were served.

At each grave taps were sounded and a short address was given by the commander, the exercises being concluded with prayer.

The graves of other members of the association located in Malden, Cambridge and Mt. Auburn, were decorated last week by the society. At each of the graves a small German flag was placed.

K. C. MEMORIAL MASS.

A memorial mass of requiem was sung in St. Joseph's Church, West End, this morning for the departed members of Washington Council, Knights of Columbus. The celebrant of the mass was Rev. E. Hillerick. Rev. Joseph P. Donovan, deacon and Rev. Peter J. McCormack subdeacon. Rev. Peter J. Walsh was master of ceremonies.

KEARSARGE VETERANS.

The Kearsarge Naval Veterans' Association marched to the Common, where a floral offering to the memory of the large floral offering to the memory of the departed sailors was placed. Prayer was offered by the chaplain, Preston Lapsley.

GIVES SERMON IN GAELIC AT CATHEDRAL

Irish Societies Attend Services Made Notable by Revival of Ancient Tongue.

Representatives of the various Irish organizations in and around Boston, as well as Gaelic scholars, were present to-day at the 9 o'clock mass in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, Washington street, at which the Rev. M. P. Mahon of the Sacred Heart Church, East Cambridge, delivered a sermon in the Gaelic tongue, the first time in the history of the church in this State.

The Rev. George H. Patterson, rector of the Church of the Archbishop, was in the pulpit, and in a clear voice announced that the sermon would be in the Gaelic tongue; that he would at the conclusion give a synopsis of it in English. That many of the congregation understood the tongue of Ireland was evidenced by the tears and smiles on their faces.

"No Tongue Is Stranger."

Here is part of Fr. Mahon's sermon in English:

"We are all, or very nearly all, from that isolated isle, either by birth or by descent. We are here to-day, as a part of the great American people, a part of the noble people of New England and of this great city. Nevertheless, when we find ourselves gathered in the great metropolitan church of New England, by special favor and gracious encouragement of our great Archbishop, to have a heart-to-heart talk in our own ancient tongue, we cannot help feeling some of that joy and spiritual exultation that filled the soul of John Mellish on Tibet's snowy peaks—no stranger.

"It is almost impossible for the Irish speaking Irishman not to be a good Catholic. The piety of his people, reflected on his language and his language reacts on him. The very phrases which it puts in his mouth for the most advisory monosyllables of life bring out the refinement of Christianity from his soul. If you meet him on the road he will not say, 'How do you do,' but he will say, 'God bless you.'

Invokes Blessing.

"If he enters your house he will say on entering: 'Prosperity from God us se.' He invokes a blessing on everything he sees for the first time. If you are parting with him he will say 'May God seven-fold prosper you.' If he is leaving you for a long say, 'May God prolong your life.' If you sneeze he will say, 'God be with us.' If he is very suddenly surprised he will cry out, 'A thousand thousand times.' If sudden trouble comes upon him he will say, 'The cross of Christ about us.' If he complains or is in grief he will console himself by saying, 'Mo Chreidear thu, a Dia, O, Mary, it is sad. See where his nature inclines him to seek consolation. He has two names for Mary—Mary when giving her child to baptism and Mulrie reserved for the mother of God alone. In the very pinch of snuff from you he will say, 'The blessing of God be with the souls of your dead.' And so for every little service and in every emergency he has beautiful little ejaculatory prayer, or aduition, passed off with a grace that is nature, refined by Christianity, alone can give.

"As a matter of fact the Gaelic Irish man lives and talks and acts as if his holy faith was his very life and the only thing to live for."

MISTRIAL IN WHITMORE SWAMP MURDER CASE

JURY DISMISSED; STOOD 9 FOR ACQUITTAL, 2 FOR SECOND DEGREE, 1 FOR FIRST.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., May 30.—After deliberating for twenty-one hours and forty eight minutes, the jury in the case of Theodore F. Whitmore, accused of the murder of his wife Helene, in the Lamphick Swamp, near Newark, reported to the court shortly before noon that it was hopelessly divided and could not agree.

As this was the second time to-day that it had reported that fact Judge Swayze, who presided, ended the trial and discharged them. Whitmore, in a state of almost total collapse, was taken back to jail. He will be tried again, although probably not until next fall.

NINE FOR ACQUITTAL.

While the jurors had agreed among themselves that the proceedings in the jury room should be kept secret, it developed later that the final vote stood nine for acquittal, two for murder in second degree, one for murder in first degree.

This latter, who stuck absolutely for a conviction that would result in the imposition of the death penalty, is understood to be Edgar Jones, 31 Brown, No. 3. As soon as the jurors were discharged they went to their homes.

It is hardly likely that the second trial can be reached until the December term, for the November calendar will be detained in the local jail.

FEARED CONVICTION.

He went from the courtroom looking much better than he entered, as he feared ever since last night that conviction was sure, the report about the courtroom being that the question of degree was the only one that was in dispute. When he reached the jail he turned to the court officer accompanying him and said:

"Well I have better luck next time I am sure."

SATELITE ON ITS FIRST TRIP

The steamer Satellite, which replaces the fishing and excursion boat Mary, which was destroyed in the Chelsea fire, went out on her first trip down the harbor to-day, and to-morrow will begin her regular season. She carries 300 passengers. The Satellite was built for August Belmont on the great lakes in the nineties and carried quarts of society people in international yacht races. The boat is luxuriously furnished.

2,000 VETERANS OF TWO WARS MARCH IN WORCESTER PARADE

WORCESTER, May 30.—Two thousand members of the G. A. R. and Spanish War Veterans took part in the Memorial Day exercises to-day. The march began at 8 o'clock and ended at the soldiers' monument on the Common, where General Charles W. Wood delivered the address. Prayer was by Rev. E. P. Drew. After the exercises at the monument [illegible] were given visits at Mechanics' Hall and took trolleys to the three cemeteries in the city to decorate graves of former G. A. R. comrades.

Exercises were held during the day at the statue of General Charles Devens in front of the courthouse. Worcester Lodge of Elks, No. 92, B. P. O. E., decorated the graves of deceased members.

AT SHAW MONUMENT.

Members of Robert Gould Shaw Post, G. A. R., placed a wreath on the Shaw monument on Beacon street opposite the State House. Prayer was offered by Rev. Judson Hoyt and an address was made by Commander Manuel E. Walker.

Anty Drudge Tells How to Make Housecleaning Easy.

Mrs. Hardwork—"I certainly do detest housecleaning time. Here I've been scrubbing and scrubbing until the skin is all off my knuckles, and I just can't get the floors and paint clean."

Anty Drudge—"All the elbow grease in the world won't clean things if you use the wrong soap. Get Fels-Naptha and the grease and dirt on floors and paint-work will disappear like magic."

Fels-Naptha is better than an extra pair of hands in housecleaning.

It makes dirt fly from walls, floors, woodwork, linoleum, windows, porcelain fittings and anything else that's cleanable, just as it does from clothes.

No scrub-brush or hot water is necessary, mind you.

Just Fels-Naptha, cool or lukewarm water, and a soft cloth.

Fels-Naptha dissolves the dirt in a jiffy so it can be rinsed away; it doesn't have to be scoured off.

As Fels-Naptha is also a germicide, it is a good sanitary precaution to do your housecleaning with it.

Did you ever try washing dishes with Fels-Naptha in lukewarm water?

It cuts the grease quick as a wink and makes the glasses shine.

Directions for all uses of Fels-Naptha are printed on the red and green wrapper.

RUSH TROOPS TO CRUSH REBELS ARMY IN SAMOS

SMYRNA, May 30.—The fighting in and around Vathy, the capital of the island of Samos, between the besieged Prince of Samos, Governor of the island, and warring islanders, has so far been in favor of the insurgents. Not only have requests for troops been made to the authorities here, but the Porte is arranging to awe Samos with a naval display.

The rebellion leaders, at the head of several hundred men, have gone so far that they can no longer be held back by the threatened invasion of troops, for their offence has been so grave that their execution will be demanded whenever hostilities are ended.

This has been responsible for the fierce fighting of the last few days, in which a number of attacks have been made upon the Prince's residence. Several hundred people have been killed in the encounters, many of them women and children.

The island is expected to reach the island to-day, when the small Turkish garrison defending the Prince will be relieved. The islanders, however, are prepared for a strong resistance and a bombardment by warships will likely be necessary to restore order.

PICKPOCKETS ROB EMIGRANTS AS LINER SAILS

Quick-Fingered Gentry Reap a Rich Harvest on White Star Docks at Charlestown.

ROMANIC CARRIES 1,000

Pickpockets reaped a rich harvest at the docks of the White Star steamship line in Charlestown this morning among more than 1,000 steerage passengers who sailed at 10:30 o'clock aboard the steamship Romanic for the Azores and Mediterranean ports. Disgusted as laborers, they worked in the crowd for nearly half an hour, plundering right and left. One man was arrested. A dozen suspicious acting fellows were driven away by the police.

Cries of "I've been robbed!" were interspersed at the docks with sturdy college yells by friends of more than 200 young women teachers and students in various colleges and seminaries throughout the country. The teachers and students went in a body for a three months' tour abroad.

The excitement started before 8 o'clock and lasted until the ship sailed. The steerage passengers clamored for admission to the boat. The saloon passengers were already aboard and the cheering had started. Then the pickpockets got busy.

Mrs. Antonio Capriel of Troy, a widow with two children, on her way back to Naples, was robbed of $50, all the money she possessed. Dozens of others, it is said, were relieved of smaller sums, some of them even losing their steamship tickets. Finally the police were called in and the spectors went through the crowd, driving out all suspects.

Two thousand friends waved adieu to the college girls as the big steamship sailed. The tourists will disembark at Naples and will return early in September by way of Liverpool.

DROWNS TRYING TO SAVE CANOE

NORTH ATTLEBORO, May 30.—In returning to the canoe in which he had tipped over, after he had successfully swam ashore once and removed his clothes, Thomas J. Flavin, a twenty-four-year-old Temple street, was seized with cramps and drowned in Falls Pond here.

Two hours later the body was brought up by grappling irons and sent to a local undertaking establishment.

Flavin was one of the best known men in town. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, the A. O. H. and a number of local organizations.

MYSTERY IN DEATH OF TWO LITTLE BALL CHILDREN MAY NEVER BE SOLVED

Spot where bodies of lost Ball children were found; Dan, the dog which led to the discovery; Joseph Rigby (at left) and Vitold Fabain, who notified the authorities.

DEAD BABIES MAY HAVE BEEN SLAIN BY CRAZED PARENT BUT HUSBAND SAYS NO.

BROCKTON, May 30.—Whether or not Tommy and Grace Ball, the two children who disappeared last December when their mother took them from school, met their death through violence may never be known. Their bodies were found yesterday in Hewitt's woods, a quarter of a mile from their own street. The bodies were in such a state of decomposition that identification was possible only by their clothing.

The condition of the bodies further precluded the possibility of determining the manner of death. In a verbal report made to Assistant District Attorney A. F. Barker, Medical Examiner Dr. A. E. Paine stated that the cause of death was unknown.

Dr. Paine examined the remains with great care, but could find no trace of a fracture of any kind on any of the bones.

Little Hope to Clear Mystery.

That either of them might have died from having their throat cut seems impossible from the fact that no traces of blood or discoloration showed on the clothing next to their throats. That they might have been choked to death can never be determined, according to the medical examiner, owing to the condition of the flesh parts of the body.

One hope that the mystery may yet be cleared remains. It is the forlorn one that Mrs. Mary Ball, their mother, who returned home four days after they went away, her hands and feet frozen, has no mind wandering, and who has since been confined in the Taunton Insane Asylum, may recover her reason sufficiently to tell of her terrible trip into the woods that bitter cold December day.

Ever since the children disappeared efforts have been made to get her to tell of the death of her children, but all efforts to her are unavailing.

Uncertain on Cause of Death.

That Tommy, who was seven years old, and Grace, who was two years older, died from violence is the firm belief of the police. Medical Examiner Paine is not so confident, "I am not at all certain whether they died of exposure or were killed," said Dr. Paine to a reporter from the BOSTON AMERICAN.

"In my report I set the time of death as Monday afternoon, December 9. That they died from exposure I do not believe for the reason that their clothing was dry.

Continued that his children died from exposure, Ball, the father, declared that Mrs. Ball had been cruel to him and her children to have ever harmed them, or when her mind was unbalanced.

Mr. Ball did not learn that the children had been found until within a few days of his house, on his way home about 7 o'clock last evening.

Father's Sad Home-Coming.

Mr. Ball had been in Boston all day, too busy to even look at a newspaper, and it was not until he met a friend, Mr. Ralph Ensworth, a short distance from his home, that he first learned of the finding of his children's bodies. The facts of Mr. Ball's home-coming are pathetic.

Loaded with a huge bunch of roses for the grave of his third child, Mr. Ball got to Brockton about 7 o'clock. He had made great preparations for today. Several days ago he went to the family lot in the cemetery and prepared the grave of his child for Monday's burial. He planned to bury it to roses.

It was the only grave he could decorate. Three children had been taken from him in the last year, and he had planned to visit his wife at Taunton after he had decorated the graves.

As he turned the corner into the street where his house is located he was met by one of his neighbors and friends.

Overcome With Grief.

It was this friend who first broke the news to Mr. Ball. Mr. Ball was seen a short time after the news had been told to him by a reporter from the BOSTON AMERICAN. It was with difficulty that he controlled his feelings sufficiently to talk to the reporter.

"Of course I am glad to know that the bodies of my two poor children have been found," said Mr. Ball, "but you must know that the news itself is terrible for me to bear.

"I have but this minute learned of it. I have felt all along that my children were dead, but the actual news has unnerved me.

"I have not even made any plans for the funeral, but I will say that the funeral will probably take place Monday. Oh, it is terrible. I have come with a big bunch of roses to put on my daughter Mary's grave. I was going to see my wife also at Taunton.

"After that, if I had time, I was going to see her brother to talk over matters in general.

Wife's Love for Children.

"No, I do not believe that my children died of violence. My wife loved them too dearly to do them harm. Even in her weakened state of mind her love for the children was too great.

"She loved those children. I never knew a woman who thought more of children than she did. I am positive that my poor wife's mind was unbalanced."

POLICE TO LOOK INTO SHOOTING OF GIRL

DEAD NEWTON NURSE'S BROTHER-IN-LAW DECLARES SHE DID NOT KILL HERSELF.

The police of Newton Centre will be asked to-day by G. A. Didert of No. 105 Safford street, Wollaston, a brother-in-law of the dead girl, to make an investigation into the death of Miss Jennie Powers, a nurse, twenty years old, who was shot and instantly killed last night while removing a loaded revolver from a bureau drawer in the home of Thomas Chapin, on Gibbs street, Newton Centre.

Didert does not believe Miss Powers committed suicide, and he doubts that her death was accidental. He believes the circumstances are such that the police and medical examiner should lay more care-ful into the case.

Jennie was a very happy girl," said Didert to-day, "and she had everything to live for. One of the chambers of the revolver was kept empty, purposely to guard against such an accident. In whatever way Jennie was shot, the revolver had to be pulled twice before the bullet went through her neck.

"She was old enough to know the danger of the revolver and it doesn't seem probable that she should pull the trigger the second time. I shall demand an inquiry."

The circumstances of the shooting were somewhat strange. Miss Powers had been assisting the Gibbs family in packing their household goods preparatory to going to a Summer resort in New Jersey for the season. The revolver, which Mr. Gibbs always kept in the house, was in a bureau drawer upstairs.

Emptying the drawers, Miss Powers ran across the weapon. It is said she was warned by Chapin that it was loaded. Taking the revolver in her hand, the story is told, she started across the room with it when it discharged. Mr. and Mrs. Chapin rushed into the room in time to see Miss Powers fall.

Blood was oozing from her neck. She was unconscious. The bullet had passed through her neck and lodged in the wall. Physicians were called but Miss Powers was past medical aid when they arrived. The medical examiner, George Fuller, said death had been accidental. The body was taken to the morgue.

The revolver was a thirty-eight calibre, of five chambers. Two of the chambers were empty. Mr. Chapin said that one chamber had always been kept empty so that if the weapon should discharge accidentally the hammer would fall upon the empty chamber and do no damage.

SECRET SWEETHEART VANDERBILT SLAYER?

POLICE BELIEVE LIBRARIAN STRANGLED IN QUARREL AND THROWN INTO CANAL.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 30.—The two negroes who were suspected of having murdered Miss Bertha Vanderbilt, the pretty young librarian of Princeton University, whose body was found in the Raritan canal on May 18, satisfactorily proved an alibi to-day, but the investigation into the mystery of the young woman's death took a new and unexpected turn.

The new clue developed by County Detective Frank Hoffman to-day directed the attention of Prosecuting Attorney George Berdine to a young man who is strongly suspected of being able to explain much that remains hidden concerning the terrible end of the Vanderbilt girl.

Who this new suspect is will not be disclosed by the authorities until more conclusive information is in their hands. This man, it is rumored, had the strongest kind of motive to have wished the girl out of the way.

Asks to Have Body Exhumed.

County Detective Hoffman, after boasting his new evidence that Miss Vanderbilt was murdered, left for Amsterdam, N. Y., where the girl's father had her buried and appealed to Supreme Court Justice Edgar A. Cumming to have the body exhumed.

The Justice communicated with the coroner and it is probable that the body will be taken from the grave some time to-day. Strands of hair of the same silken texture and the same color as those of the dead girl; a bit of woman's waterproof cloth; the pearl button from a woman's shirt waist; a man's collar button, all found within a few yards of where the girl's body was found in the canal in a clump of bushes on the bank, were the things that swiftly changed opinion as to the manner of the girl's terrible end.

The official decision of the coroner and his county physician that the girl had fallen from the bridge over the canal near where the latter adjoins Carnegie Lake and had drowned was no longer tenable to-day, in view of the discovery until now hidden by the bushes on the canal bank. Prosecuting Attorney Berdine was to-day inclined to believe that Miss Vanderbilt had met her death brutally at the hands, not of some ruffian, but of a lover, and that at the hands of a man in this community who had been considered one of the dead girl's dearest friends.

Beaten and Strangled.

Behind the girl's violent death there may exist as yet unrevealed the story of a woman's mind, agony of mind and heart ended by the trenchery of a man she loved. There were bruises at the base of Miss Vanderbilt's skull and upon her face when her body was taken from the canal.

Considered with the discovery of the strands of hair in the canal bushes, they have led to the assumption of a struggle between the girl and her murderer. And the fact would indicate, that, beaten insensible she was strangled before her body was thrown into the water. This fact is the observation of William Sayler, in whose wagon the body was taken to Princeton after it was dragged from the canal, that there was a piece of cambric resembling the fragment of an apron tied tightly around the girl's neck.

Saylor has made an affidavit to this effect and the document is likely to become of peculiar importance within a short time. The movements of Miss Vanderbilt from the time she left her home to the meeting of Mrs. Van Cleave on the evening of May 13 until about 6:30 p. m. that evening when she was walking along Aqueduct road not far from the canal and to that part of the latter where the body was eventually found, have now been definitely traced.

PANIC ON FERRYBOAT WHEN STRUCK BY TUG

Panic-stricken passengers on the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn ferryboat Governor Brewster, and a flying leap from the deckhouse of the tug Sir Willard by one of the crew on the larger boat were features of a collision between the two vessels early to-day to the dense fog that hung over the harbor.

With such impact did the two boats come together that the deckhouse of the tug was torn almost from the stub-nosed craft. Following the crash, the auxiliary steam pipes of the tug broke, and the hiss of the escaping steam added to the fright of the ferry passengers.

But by the time it was thought that James Critch of the tug crew had been thrown into the water and had drowned. It was found later that he had escaped unharmed.

Many Passengers on Board.

The Governor Brewster had left East Boston for her 7 o'clock trip to Boston. She was fairly well filled with passengers, for the fog had caused a delay of some 15 minutes in starting. The boat was in charge of Capt. William Nelson.

The fog hung low and was so thick that the crew could see only a few feet ahead. The air was filled with the tooting of all manner of craft.

Shooting out from the starboard side, unseen and headed direct for the three decker Brewster, suffered the Sir Willard. When the ferryboat had got on its way again there was about 100 yards of clear water before it with a ripping, crunching sound that was portentous with danger.

While the women on the boat realized that an accident had happened, according to Capt. Nelson, they behaved with the greatest bravery. Not knowing the extent of the damage that had been done, Captain Nelson ordered the lifeboat manned and whistled for the police patrol. The latter was on the ferryboat immediately with alacrity and in a moment they were crisscrossing in the foggbound waters for anyone who may have been tossed overboard.

In the meantime Captain Alexander Quinan of the tug was making a rapid inventory of the men and boat. He found that his deckhouse had been carried away almost and that one man, Critch, was missing. It was learned later that Critch had seen the impending danger and had prepared for it. He dashed up to the deckhouse and when the two vessels came together he gave a flying leap and landed safe on the larger boat.

Captain Quinan found that his main steel pipes were all right and he managed to make the trip into the Leyland docks. The damage to the tug was estimated at $200.

To a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN Captain Nelson made this statement:

Excitement on Boat.

"Yes, there was considerable excitement on board the ferryboat. But the crowd behaved splendidly. Some fainted because of the holiday. That helped the situation. The women behaved like true gentlemen. I saw the man jump from the deck of the tug, and not knowing whether he landed in the water or not got out the lifeboat.

"I have a crew that has only been with me three days, but they behaved splendidly. I was glad to get the fog out of the way, but the fog was so thick that navigation was difficult. Our only damage was to the rudder."

SALADA'S BIG SALE PROVES ITS QUALITY

There is no mistaking the superiority of a tea that in sixteen years has built up a market in almost every part of America, that has had the most enormous increase in sales, year after year, until over 18,000,000 packages was the immense output in 1907. This continental endorsement of "Salada" tea proves conclusively their right in offering it to the public as the most delicious and healthful tea in the world.

PIANOS AND ORGANS. PIANOS AND ORGANS.

Fire Losses on Pianos

A slight blistering of the cases by the heat is quickly remedied—a thorough scraping and rubbing down and revarnishing in our repair dept. makes the piano as good as new—a thorough inspection of all the parts, and then our expert tuner completes the job—then the beautiful piano is sent to our sacrifice floor and the economical buyer gets a fine instrument for almost nothing. All makes have been coming in—the best pianos in the world—and are sacrificed at once.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, MAY 30, 1908

Education for Your Children at Small Cost

It Is Your SERIOUS DUTY to Stimulate Their Minds by Clean Amusement

The human being most IN NEED of amusement, most greatly benefited by amusements that stimulate the imagination, IS THE CHILD. And in our civilization there is far too little done in the line of amusement for children.

Whatever stimulates imagination stimulates mental growth.

The big open-air Summer carnival by the ocean is a beneficial, normal, entrancing stimulant to the imagination of children. That is why we urge parents to take their children as often as possible to Wonderland. Once a week is not too often.

This institution and its management, on clean, intelligent, broadly spectacular lines, constitute a real public service in Boston and New England.

The prancing ponies, the dogs that stand on their heads or their hind legs, the Indian ponies, the burros, the clowns, the "barkers"—THOSE ARE THE THINGS UPON WHICH CHILDREN'S MINDS DEVELOP.

Children suffer if they do not occasionally receive the normal stimulant of pleasant excitement. Entertainment is a necessity of childhood.

An old American joke represents the father taking the child to the circus as an excuse for going himself. No excuse is needed for a trip to Wonderland.

Boys and girls should be taken regularly. It is their right, and the father and mother should go along to enjoy the performance with the children, and to enjoy, ABOVE ALL, the children's intense delight.

The season at Wonderland is now in full swing. We have officially investigated all the performances, and we recommend them to children and our readers enthusiastically.

The imaginative child can get more actual mental food seeing the throng, asking questions about the curiosities, admiring the athletes—to be imitated later on—than in any afternoon or WEEK of schooling.

The important thing in your child is THAT CHILD'S OWN THOUGHTS. Stimulate the thought of a child, encourage it, keep away everything that is morbid. Never take a young child to a play that ends sadly, or that has sad features or mysterious life problems in it.

Wonderland was made for the children. The young mind is adapted to wonder; it is delighted with the strange and difficult.

Crusty old bachelors and those victims of stupid civilization and man's bad taste, the old maids, ought to go to Wonderland often. The pleasure of the children spreads even to the dullest, oldest and most dried up.

We believe that the men who use their money, energy and enterprise in these splendid entertainments for the children are public benefactors, and this editorial is written to encourage them in their work and to tell fathers and mothers that it is THEIR DUTY to encourage the work also and make the children happy.

By an arrangement with the Wonderland Park management, the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN gives to its readers free tickets to be used Monday and Tuesday of each week. This free coupon plan is to continue throughout the season. The announcements will be made from day to day in the daily AMERICAN.

To-morrow's free tickets are two in number. One admits the holder to the park and its open-air attractions, including the board walk parade, free circus and ballyhoo; the second ticket entitles the holder to ride down the Wonderland mammoth chutes.

These free tickets, cut from the SUNDAY AMERICAN, will be received at Wonderland just like real money.

Start for the beach early, and give the children a chance to play in the sand before or after the visit to Wonderland. Don't hesitate to let the children stay away from school one afternoon if Wonderland is to take the school's place.

But, whatever you do, remember that the intense delight which you can give to the children at little cost is limited to their youth, to THIS period of their lives.

You cannot make up for it if you neglect these weekly opportunities to stimulate the minds of your children.

Simple Dress and Kind Heart

By Winnifred Black

WHAT'S your daughter going to wear when she graduates? Something simple and pretty, and sweet and becoming—and inexpensive?

I hope so.

Your daughter's heart needs educating. Just as much as her mind, and if you let her bring heart burning and envy into that graduation day, just because you are vain and thoughtless, you are going to do her a very deep and a very lasting injury.

I'd rather see a girl of mine graduate in a simple, cheap little dress, with a heart full of love and kindness, than to watch her make her dear little speech in a smart dress that fills her companions with envy and misery.

Small of them to mind?

Of course it is, very small, but it's small of you and your daughter to give them something to mind, don't you think so?

I saw a girl graduate last June. She read an essay on "The Simple Life." It was a beautiful essay, full of high-sounding words and noble aspirations—and I happened to know that the girl's mother staid away from church all Spring to save the money to buy the dress her daughter graduated in.

I wonder how much good those noble sentiments did a girl who was selfish enough to let her mother make such a sacrifice.

We can't send our daughters to a heart school from which they can graduate with a nice, neat diploma.

But we can help them to learn that all the brains in the world don't count unless the girl who has them has a heart, too.

An elaborate graduating dress is in the worst possible taste in the world. People who know how to do the proper thing dress young girls as simply as they possibly can, anyway.

And besides—a dress that cost tears and envy and sacrifice is entirely too expensive for any right-minded girl to want.

Have the graduating dress simple—or don't let daughter graduate at all.

Little Editorials from the People

MUCH INTEREST IN WEBSTER

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Much interest is manifested toward the Independence party, and the prospects look good that Webster will cast a heavy vote for the Independence party next Fall. I know many strong Republicans that say the Independence party is all right and will receive their vote next Fall. If it were in my power to convert all the Republican wage-earners in Webster I would be pleased with my life work. As my life work is not ended I can use the power which God gives to man who dare to stand and to work for the right.

I believe that the Independence party stands for the principles which every organized wage-earner should advance by their vote. That the party will be victorious and the wage-earner will be on the right road to gain better conditions.

"Unity is strength," and the strength is with the wage-earner. This fact is being more and more realized by organized labor, in which I have much interest. I have held office in our local Painters' Union as secretary; have been secretary-treasurer of the Worcester County Conference of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America. At present I am treasurer of the Webster local, whose members are favorable to the Independence party. As a delegate to the Central Labor Union of Webster I find and get favorable reports of the party.

MIRED!

CAN THEY PULL HIM OUT OF THE HOLE?

Mr. Newberry has drawn a picture showing the situation on Beacon Hill.

The fat Railroad Trust was violating all the speed laws, when it ran into the Massachusetts Supreme Court and skidded off into a mud hole.

The United States District Attorney made matters still worse by trying to arrest the Trust on the charge of breaking the Federal laws.

Things certainly did look bad for the Railroad Trust, when—Look! ! Who's here?

Why, none other than Mr. Mellen of Connecticut, driving his famous bi-partisan team, the Republican elephant and the Democratic donkey.

The elephant and the donkey are a TRUSTY pair. Many a time in the past have they pulled the puffing Railroad Trust out of a hole on Beacon Hill.

Will they do it again?

CAN they?

Well, just watch Mr. Mellen's whip!

SEE if they don't.

The poor little Democratic donkey! He doesn't look able to pull such a heavy load, does he? Luckily for him, he doesn't HAVE to pull VERY MUCH. The elephant will draw the load. All the poor little donkey has to do is to keep in the traces and kick his heels up obediently every time Mr. Mellen cracks the whip.

The Bi-Partisan Merger Team

These are the members of the Railroad Committee of the Legislature who reported UNANIMOUSLY a bill to permit the New Haven road to continue to hold the Boston & Maine stock that the New Haven had bought IN VIOLATION OF THE LAW.

The "Other Man"

He Is Never a Menace When Husbands Are Attentive

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal-Examiner

AN unhappy wife and mother became morbid because her husband suspected her integrity as a wife. The "other man" had appeared upon the scene, and with his coming trust flew out of the window.

There were suspicions, accusations and recriminations. Then the woman decided to "end it all," and she inhaled gas and left the jealous husband to his meditations, and innocent young daughters, old enough to feel the horror of the tragedy, to a shadowed childhood.

One is obliged to wonder, after reading the story, how it all began.

Who was the first offender?

How could the "other man" become a danger in the household if the husband had fulfilled all his obligations to "love, cherish and protect" till death parted?

It is not as a rule until the "party of the first part," to use legal phraseology, becomes negligent, unfaithful or unkind that the "party of the third part" can menace the peace of domestic life.

Years ago a beautiful young girl married a man much beneath her socially, but she adored him and was a willing mother to his children.

Accepting her devotion as a proof that he had obtained a modern Patient Griselda for a wife, the husband grew negligent. He strayed away from home and fireside to find amusement in the clubs and at games, where money needed for the wife and children was squandered. And he was unfaithful to his vows.

Children increased in the home, as fortune and faithfulness dwindled, and then one day a sympathetic "party of the third part" appeared, with pity in his heart for the neglected young wife and mother and love in his eyes.

There were letters, breathing both sentiments, found one day by the astonished husband. Whereupon he took the position of a trusting and deceived man and drove his faithless wife from his door and refused to allow her to visit her children.

A divorce was obtained; the children were kept under the parental roof, and the wife went home to her relatives.

Curiously enough, the flagrantly faithless husband considered himself a fit companion for his children, but the merely indiscreet mother was banished from their presence.

If a man trusts a woman sufficiently to make her his wife, he should feel it incumbent upon himself to study her nature and her moods, and to guard her from any possible approach to an indiscretion by his loving devotion.

Every woman loves praise; every woman loves admiration; every woman loves the little gallantries which men bestow on those of the sex who attract them.

It is when none of these attentions is given by the husband that the "party of the third part" becomes a danger. Yet so blind to his own derelictions is the average husband that no earthly power can make him believe he is the one first in fault when the hour of discovery comes and he knows that some other man has interested his wife to a degree dangerous to the peace of the household.

Before any man accuses his wife of infidelity, or even indiscretion; before any woman accuses her husband of disloyalty—let them take a mental survey of their own conduct; of their own sins of commission and omission.

And let him who is without sin cast the first stone.

Lesson IX.—The Flounder.

LOOK care-ful-ly at this Strange Object. It is a Floun-der, oth-er-wise called a Flat-fish. Do you know why it is called a Flat-fish? I will tell you. It is called a Flat-fish be-cause its Shape en-ables you, by hold-ing it side-ways, to take it into a mus-eum Flat. So if you want to have an Aqua-ri-um in your Flat be sure to get a Flat-fish.

The Floun-der is not a Pret-ty Fish, and it can-not Swim very Fast but its Odd Shape makes it bet-ter ad-apt-ed than you are to be run o-ver by a Steam Roll-er. Thus we learn that there is a Rea-son for Everything in Na-ture. An-other ad-van-tage of the Floun-der's Figure is the way it qual-i-fies it to Get In on the Ground Floor.

If your Father could get e-nough Floun-ders he could use them to Tile the Bath-room Floor.

From the Floun-der we learn never to Laugh at anything because it has a Funny Shape. Per-haps it can-not afford bet-ter Cor-sets.
